Much About Women
No Gynocracy
No Sex Control
On the Shelf Too Soon
By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1921.

Yesterday Ellen Terry went back to the stage for awhile to celebrate the sixty-fifth anniversary of her start as an actress. Miss Terry is as young today as when her genius helped to create Henry Irving, who had no genius, but much business ability.

Ellen Terry and Sarah Bernhardt—the latter nearing eighty and earning a living on the stage with one leg cut off—prove that when women have an intellectual interest they do not grow old. Human beings, like trees, die at the top.

The trouble with our civilization, worthy of the Turks, is largely in its treatment of women. They are supposed to entertain men for a little while, provide them with children, then crawl up on the shelf and STAY there from fifty on. Fifty is the age at which woman, having done her duty by the race, ought to begin enjoying herself through the exercise of her intellect.

A writer in the Temps, Paris, fears that gynocracy, or rule by women, is coming.

Usually the sexes are about balanced. Now in France there are a million more women than men between twenty and forty years of age. This, a deep professor thinks, will feminize the population. It won't, and the situation is not new. Wars have killed more men than women always, but nature soon evens it up. The Bible tells of a day coming later when "seven woman shall lay hold of one man," but that's a long way off.

The French writer thinks that superior women among the extra million will be compelled to marry their inferiors, which will make them bitter. Women have always been compelled to marry their inferiors, and they all know it a little while after they are married. But the men don't know it.

The killing of so many young men in the war will increase the number of children of old fathers. According to Plato that is an excellent thing. It isn't "feminizing" human beings to take the brutal fighting instinct out of them. It didn't feminize man as he gradually lost the huge canine teeth, still possessed by his cousin the baboon, and by some nearer relations, among the anthropoids.

Monsieur Cove, the French professor, says a mother can control the sex of unborn children by exercising the will. Fortunately it is not true. Some things are so important that nature does not allow half-developed human beings to meddle with them.

The same professor says women can influence their children before birth, which is true. The most important influence is a mother's affection and respect for a father. If a man wants good children, let him treat the mother well and deserve her respect.

Karl Von Wiegand, able, well-informed and impartial correspondent, sends a gloomy picture of conditions in Russia. He tells of twenty million human beings fleeing from central Russia to escape starvation, making matters worse in the great cities. He tells of heat, lack of rain, that have caused the earth to crack, streams to become dry and trees to lose their leaves. Those religious and conservative will say that Providence itself is fighting against Bolshevism.

As you consider the bad news from Russia, received blandly and pleasantly by nations and individuals to whom the Bolsheviats owe money, ask yourself this question:

What do you suppose a nation of 180,000,000 will DO when twenty millions are starving and begin marching on the cities with starvation's desperation?

Will not internal trouble force Russia into external aggression? The latest news tells of a plague of locusts adding to the Russian famine. Will not a swarm of Russians, directed by officers successfully trained in much recent fighting, pour out into Poland or other neighboring territory? It has been fairly well proved that Russia cannot be conquered from the outside. We may learn soon, under Bolshevism, what the Russians can do as conquering marauders, driven by the force of starvation. The greatest, most successfully conquering migrations of population throughout history have been based on lack of food.

Ulster Causes New Peace Crisis

LONDON STILL HAS HOPE

De Valera Remains to See Lloyd George Thursday as Craig Returns Home

London, July 19.—A hopeful fact in the Irish situation is that Eamon De Valera is remaining in London to resume his conversations with Lloyd George on Thursday, counting upon developments in Belfast following Premier Craig's return there to offer a new channel for settlement.

The Irish leader is determined to seek peace as long as there is any hope of a settlement.

Comment by the London press indicates that the situation, while critical, still contains the elements of hope.

With whatever settlement is reached by De Valera and Lloyd George, Premier Craig declared, "Ulster has a right to interfere, unlike De Valera in the case of the Ulster settlement."

Craig added that he hoped some agreement would be reached, and said that Ulster would be glad to co-operate "on equal terms at any conference that is necessary."

CRAIG FOR "EQUALITY."

Craig's insistence upon Ulster's right to participate on a basis of absolute equality with southern Ireland is in direct conflict with De Valera's program of refusal to discuss terms on a bi-partisan basis. It clearly indicates that attempts to reach a settlement have, for the moment at least, encountered a formidable obstacle.

Further evidence of the seriousness of the deadlock is provided by Craig's statement that "the situation is cleared by the fact that De Valera and his friends are sticking out on the question of self-determination for Ireland. The Sinn Feiners' candidates stood in the Ulster elections on the questions of non-partition and self-determination and were beaten."

The split between the opposing camps is accentuated by a statement from De Valera in the Daily Herald, in which he says:

SMUTS KEPT IN TOUCH.

"Ireland's one demand is an unqualified right to choose freely how she shall be governed—other words for independence. Her only request is to be left alone, free from British aggression and interference."

Premier Jan Smuts, of South Africa, is still closely watching every stage of the conference and is the only statesman outside the inner British cabinet circle who has been kept fully informed by Lloyd George of what is happening behind the closed doors.

Lloyd George thinks that the situation does not yet demand the employment of Smuts as mediator between the Sinn Fein and Ulster. The British premier believes that he can clear the road to negotiations himself.

PRESS IS CAUTIOUS.

The British press generally is treating the situation with extreme caution, although the Daily News, The Star and the Herald describe it as "critical."

The Times said:

"The language of Sir James Craig seems rigid and unyielding, but the final passages do not seem like a final word in a hopeless quest."

The Telegraph says:

"The statement is a disagreeable shock to the optimists, but it does not absolutely close the door."

The Daily News thinks that the difficulties which have arisen may

TO EJECT DISABLED WAR HERO

Hedlund, Medal Winner, Barred From Hospital by Washington Order

By CHARLES G. POWER.

They are going to turn Fritz Hedlund of Waltham, former corporal of F Company, 101st fu-fantry, a liaison runner throughout the fighing in France, out of the Parker Hill Hospital next Thursday, unless something is done to cause the War Risk Bureau officials in Washington to change their minds in this meantime.

The doctors up on the Hill won't say that Hedlund is in condition to be discharged from the hospital.

The order to fire him out comes from officials in Washington who read reports and never see human documents. They have also decided that, while Hedlund suffers from a disability of service origin, they have not rated it high enough to entitle him to compensation.

"Better look into the Hedlund case," said several of the patients at the hospital to me yesterday. And one commented in like manner.

"The bonus bill was rocked to sleep again by ringing the charges on the economic wrecking of the country and the familiar promise given that everything possible must be done for the deserving disabled before a bonus can be given. See how it works with Hedlund, that deserving disabled soldier stuff."

HIS HEROIC RECORD.

Is he deserving? He was gassed at Chemin de Dames. He got through all right in the Toul sector. At Chateau Thierry he and three other runners were taking orders from a captain when a shell exploded within a few yards of them, knocking them all flat and smashing the eardrums of one of the fellows. "We were lucky that time," says Hedlund.

Seven of them were running in single file at Verdun when a shell came along, cutting a leg off the first fellow and killing the second, third and fourth. He was sixth in line.

"That was a little to much for sleep that night," he says.

President Poincaire of France pinned the Medalie Militaire on Hedlund's coat; Congress awarded him the Distinguished Service Cross and, after the war, France sent along the Croix de Guerre with ruffles to Hedlund through General Edwards.

AIDED DYING CAPTAIN.

He was alongside Captain Francis Leahy of Lawrence when that gallant soldier was killed at Chateau Thierry. He was helping Lieutenant A. A. Hanson to hold their dying captain until the stretcher bearers came and heard his last order:

Lieutenant, the command is forward. See the boys through."

Hedlund says he often thinks of that scene, of the brave and thoughtful dying captain and the calm courage of the lieutenant who came home a major.

He had been a hairpring truer in the watch factory before he went to war. It is work that calls for a steady hand and steady nerves, as well as keen vision.

On May 21 last, he went to Parker Hill Hospital. A doctor at the downtown office of the War Risk Bureau had at last said he needed rest and hospital care. He is recorded as having neurasthenia and hysterical trouble. He is nervous. His hands are not steady. He does not sleep calmly. He coughs in his sleep.

A War Risk letter of last January said: "If at any time in the future your disability should become greater

Husband and Wife to Remain Silent for Nine Years More

By International News Service.

New York, July 19.—After nine years' silent sharing of the same apartment, during which time neither spoke unless it became absolutely necessary, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Baumann today renewed their documentary agreement for another period of nine years.

Baumann is seventy-five and his wife forty-five. To their difference in age he ascribes the original difficulties which led to them signing an agreement to live together, but never to speak when it could be avoided.

"Under our agreement," Baumann said, "I disavow all control over my children. My wife must support herself and the children, while I take care of myself."

There are twelve Bauman children, six the offspring of a previous marriage.

HIGH COURT DENIES ARNSTEIN NEW TRIAL

Washington, July 19.—The District Court of Appeals today denied the application of Julius W. (Nicky) Arnstein, Isidore (Nick) Cohen of New York and David W. Sullivan, Norman S. Rowles and Wilbur W. Easterday of Washington for a mandamus to compel Justice Siddons of the District Supreme Court to grant them a new trial on the conspiracy charges of which they were convicted. Counsel for the defendants claimed that the death of Justice Gould made a new trial necessary and that Justice Siddons had no legal power to sentence the defendants. Defendants entered said today that an application in the United States Supreme Court for a mandamus was being prepared.

METHODIST MINISTER TO FIGHT BLUE LAW

Washington, July 19.—The anti-blue law advocates are going to have a hearing before the House Judiciary Committee in opposition to a national Sunday observance law, which was recently urged by representatives of the Southern Methodist Church. It was announced today. "Our plan is to meet those clergymen with one from their own ranks, who believes such legislation as proposed is here in un-American," said F. C. Dailey, secretary of the Anti-Blue Law League of America. "This man will be Dr. Albert H. Zimmerman, who has spent thirty-five years in the Methodist clergy."

BEVERLY BOY STRUCK BY AUTO, ON DANGER LIST

Beverly, July 19.—Wallace Williams, five-year-old son of Mrs. Helen Williams of No. 16 Simonds street, is on the danger list at the Beverly Hospital as a result of being hit by an automobile. The boy, according to the police, was riding on the back of another automobile and jumped off on the path of an approaching machine. Jonatnan Brown of Hamilton, driver of the car, and a police officer took the boy to the hospital. He is suffering from a compound fracture of the arm and bruises and contusions of the head and face.

VISCOUNT BRYCE COMING TO BOSTON SOON

Viscount James Bryce, former ambassador from Great Britain to the United States, historian and publicist, who arrived in New York yesterday with Viscountess Bryce and his nephew, Roland Leo, is expected to reach Boston within a couple of days, before attending the institute of politics at Williams College. He said that he expects to visit friends in Massachusetts and also to pay a flying trip to Washington before returning home, two months hence.

CLAIMS COAL OPERATORS RESTRICTED OUTPUT

Washington, July 19.—Coal operators in Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois were charged today with entering into a conspiracy with the United Mine Workers to strict the coal output of the West Virginia and Kentucky fields. The charge was made by Harry Olmstead, chairman of the Minge county, West Virginia and Kentucky border coal fields, before a Senate committee investigating the killings resulting from labor disturbances there.

'WILD BILL' SOX TRIAL WITNESS

Donovan Ready to Back Up Burns' Story of "Fixing" of Series

By International News Service.

Chicago, July 19.—A sensation was sprung at the "Black Sox" scandal trial here today when William ("Wild Bill"), Donovan, manager of the Philadelphia National League Club, appeared as a "surprise" witness for the prosecution.

It was announced Donovan would corroborate the testimony of Bill Burns, the State's "star" witness and former scandal plotter.

The inside story of the alleged "fixing" of the 1919 World Series was to be revealed when Bill Burns, erstwhile White Sox pitcher, took the stand. Burns has been granted immunity from prosecution, the State announced and will give out full details of the plot.

Attorneys for the State have made it evident that they are counting on the testimony of Burns to "clinch" their case. Burns is alleged to have been one of the chief agents between the gamblers who sought to make a fortune by "buying" the series and the players whose greed for gold, the state alleges, led them to sell out to the plotters.

Another witness whose testimony is expected to be taken today is Byron Bancroft Johnson, president of the American League. Johnson is to be questioned regarding technical matters affecting the conduct of the World Series. It is likely that he also will be asked regarding investigations he had to make in connection with reports of corruption that followed the playing of the 1919 series.

The defense emphasized by the action of the jury the point that the regular contract season for the White Sox had expired before the World series was played. The indictments charge a violation of contract, but attorneys for the defense brought out that the World Series is played under the orders of the national commission and that technically the players are not under contract.

Attorneys for the State are expected to contend that the reserve clauses in the baseball contracts cover the World series period and to introduce evidence showing that the players were paid by the White Sox owners for playing in the series. Harry Grabiner, secretary of the White Sox club, it was said, is expected to be called in this connection.

GOV. EDWARDS WILL NOT SAVE CONVICTED SLAYERS

Camden, N. J., July 19.—Governor Edwards, as a statement to Camden County officials today, declared he would take no action to interfere with the execution of Frank J. James and Raymond W. Schaick, convicted of the murder of David A. Paul, aged bank messenger. The men will be electrocuted in Trenton during the week of August 1. James and Schaick confessed of killing Paul last October and stealing $18,000 in cash and bonds.

BELA KUN JAILED IN PLOT FOR RED REVOLT

Copenhagen, July 18—Bela Kun, former Communist dictator of Hungary, has been arrested at Lemberg for plotting a Red uprising in Galicia, according to a dispatch printed by the Berlingske Tidende today.

Bela Kun went into Galicia immediately after the adjournment of the Communist Congress at Moscow.

FARM HAND FALLS DEAD IN HAYFIELD

STRIKES OFFICER IN FACE, PAYS $10 FINE

Westfield, July 19.—Ernest Beckman of Southwick took exception to a verbal order from Deputy Sheriff Harry S. Hartley and struck the officer of the law in the face.

Beckman and other young men were streaming a group of foreign born residents when Deputy Sheriff Hartley ordered them to stop.

After striking the officer, Beckman took to his heels, but he was later caught and fined $10 in District Court.

FRIEND OF 'BROWNIE' KENNEDY IN CASE

State Tries to Show District Attorney's Helper Had Visited Her House

Charges that District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County shielded Mrs. Lillian Howe, proprietor of houses in Cambridge and Boston and reported to be a close friend of "Brownie" Kennedy, were aired today at the trial of Tufts on charges of malfeasance by the Supreme Court.

Principal witness against him on this serious charge were J. Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward Society, and Lieutenants Joseph J. Donohoe and Charles W. Wyman of the Cambridge police.

The most spectacular feature of the day's testimony was the attempt of Attorney-General Allen to introduce a small book found in the Howe woman's Boston house, containing a list of names.

Counsel for Tufts strenuously and successfully fought this move.

Lieutenant Wyman testified to assisting in a raid on Mrs. Howe's house at No. 353 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, on November 7, 1920.

The house was that formerly occupied by "Brownie" Kennedy. He found two men, four women and a maid there.

"MYSTERY MAN."

Wyman testified that John H. Doyle, somewhat of a "man of mystery" in the Tufts case and an attache of Tufts' office, had been seen going into and coming out of Mrs. Howe's Cambridge establishment.

J. Frank Chase took the stand and, handled concerning a raid on a house conducted by Mrs. Howe in Boston on June 1 of this year.

The raiders, he testified, found a small book with a list of names and telephone numbers.

In that book, Attorney-General Allen declared, was found the name of John Doyle, Tufts' underling, and the telephone number of Cambridge 7613, the number of Tufts' Cambridge office.

Counsel for the defence at this time raised strenuous objection to the introduction of the names in the book as evidence.

Chief Justice Rugg finally ruled the names were not material and the book was ordered shut.

Lieutenant Donohue of the Cambridge police testified to being in the raid, testified to finding, and the alleged failure to bring Mrs. Howe to trial.

Asked [illegible] Tufts about it, he said, and Tufts told him he "would take the case up later."

URGED TUFTS TO ACT.

She was never prosecuted.

Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward Society said he talked with Tufts about prosecuting the Howe woman in January of the present year.

"I told him the evidence was very complete," said Chase.

"I urged him to proceed with the case. I asked him to take it up during the January term of the court of 1921.

"I told him about Lillian Howe. I said I understood she had been housekeeper for Maggie Roach in the South End, on Washington street, Rutland street and the Bay State road.

"I told him that this woman had conducted places which were committing liquor nuisances at that one hotel place at Shrewsbury," continued Chase.

Chase testified that later this year he told Tufts that Lillian Howe was conducting a house of iniquity in Boston.

Later he participated in a raid on the house. That was about June 1, when the book with the list of names was found.

Other angles of the Tufts case taken up today included the so-called "Lowell mistress case," the case of James Hart, former Boston policeman, for whom it is charged, Tufts declined to issue a capias after he had been detected receiving stolen automobiles, and the liquor case in which Tufts is accused of nolle-prossing.

The Lillian Howe matter, however, compelled the closest interest.

RAIDED HOUSE.

Lieutenant Joseph J. Donahue of Station 2, Cambridge, testified. He was questioned by Attorney-General Allen.

Q.—Lieutenant, you were in charge of a raid of a house conducted by Lillian F. Howe? A.—I was.

Q.—When was that raid? A.—November 7, 1920.

Q.—Who was there? A.—Chief Mc-

Bride, Lieutenant Hannibal Hamlin of th ehgiene department of the War Department, J. Frank Chase and Lieutenant Wyman.

Q.—Where was that raid made? A.—Suite C, No. 252 Massachusetts avenue.

Q.—Was that the suite formerly occupied by "Rosie" Kennedy under the name of Morse? A.—So far as I know.

Attorney Johnson: "I move that that be stricken out." (Excluded.)

Q.—Will you state who had attached the evidence against the house? A.—Lieutenant Hannibal Hamlin obtained some. Frank Chase obtained some.

Q.—What time was the raid made? A.—It was after 11 a. m.

Q.—What did you find there? A.—We found one man in one room, a man he had in another room and four women and a maid in the suite.

Q.—Was the case tried in the lower court? A.—It was.

Q.—What disposition was made? A.—Howe Hart was found guilty in the lower court.

COMPLAINTS RECEIVED.

"Wait," interjected Attorney Johnson.

Justice Rugg: "The evidence is competent."

Lieutenant Donahue was in the act of reading from memoranda when he was again stopped by objection raised by Attorney Johnson, who claimed there was no record.

Q.—With respect to Lillian F. Howe, do you know about the house and what happened to the case? A.—I do.

Q.—As a result of the trial in the Third Middlesex County Court were you afterward in the Superior Court? A.—I was in Tufts' office.

Q.—What conversation took place there about the case? A.—I think it was in December. Mr. Blanchard, named in the case, had been in to see someone in the courthouse. Mr. Blanchard said to me they wouldn't plead with the girls. I said I wanted a plea of guilty on the woman. I wanted that plea because I was going to make a complaint to the owner of the apartment house.

Q.—Did you talk to Tufts? A.—Yes.

Q.—About the case? A.—Yes.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said he would take the case in later. I told him the house was one of ill fame and the government had been after it.

if you thought Tufts wasn't going ahead with it? A.—Well, I knew when they got around to it they would call me in.

Under redirect examination by Attorney-General Allen the witness testified he would take a fine on the house and the woman.

CHASE TALKED WITH TUFTS.

The next witness was J. Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward Society. He identified he lived at No. 196 Stratford street, West Roxbury. He said he was secretary of the organization. Questioned by Attorney-General Allen:

Q.—Did you have information regarding a house of ill fame conducted in Cambridge by Lillian Howe? A.—I did.

Q.—Did you consult District Attorney Tufts about it? A.—I did.

Q.—When? A.—Early last week in January, 1921.

Q.—What did you say to him? A.—I called his attention to the circumstances connected with the case. I told him there were many complaints made about the house. I said the government was getting very busy about such places. I told him that Lillian Howe was very bad against the place, and urged him to proceed with the case. He promised me he would take up the case during the January term of the regular court of 1921.

I told him about Lillian Howe. I said to him I understood she was now a housekeeper for Maggie Roach, who runs a house of ill fame in the South End of Boston, another on Washington street, Boston, another on Columbus avenue, South End, another place on Rutland street, South End, and a house on Bay State road. I told him that this woman had conducted places which were considered a liquor nuisance and that she had a place at Shrewsbury, Mass., and another house on Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge.

TELEPHONE LIST BOOK.

Q.—Did you know Lillian Dale had a house at No. 253 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, and that she went also under the name of Lillian Kingston at that address? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where was that place in Cambridge? A.—Suite S, No. 253 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge.

Q.—Did you recently have any conversation with Tufts? A.—I did.

Q.—About whom? A.—Lillian Howe.

Q.—What did you tell him? A.—I told him I understood she was connected with a band of ill fame in Boston.

Q.—Did you subsequently participate in a raid on the house in Boston? A.—Yes.

Q.—When? A.—On or about the first of June.

Q.—This year? A.—Yes.

Q.—Amongst the things you found here was a telephone book? A.—Yes.

Attorney-General Allen showed the witness a memorandum telephone book. It was identified.

Q.—Is this the book you took? A.—I do.

Attorney Johnson: "Your Honor, how is that material?"

Attorney-General Allen: "I offer this telephone list of the woman Howe at the time because it contains the names—"

Attorney Johnson: "I object to the admissibility of this telephone book. How is it material?"

HAD DOYLE'S NAME.

Attorney-General Allen: "I offer it because it contains the name of J. Doyle, it gives the telephone number of the district attorney's office in the Cambridge court. The number is Cambridge 7044. That is the number of Tufts' office and Doyle has been seen going into the place in a drunken condition."

Objection by Johnson sustained.

Under cross-examination by Attorney Johnson, Chase testified that he was sure he talked with Tufts about the first week in January, 1921. He based the date on a letter.

Q.—Was the date on the first Monday in January? A.—Yes sir.

Q.—At what time of the day? A.—11 a. m.

In conclusion, Mr. Chase said that the conversation with Tufts occurred in Tufts' office in East Cambridge and that a young woman was present. He thought she was a stenographer. He said he had no information that the woman defendant had been in Cambridge since the raid.

Next witness was Lieutenant Charles W. Wyman of the Cambridge police department. He said he participated in the raid on the Howe woman's suite at No. 253 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge.

SAW DOYLE ENTER.

Q.—While you were watching those premises had you ever seen any persons connected with the office of District Attorney Tufts go in? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who was it? A.—John Doyle.

Q.—What was his condition when you saw him going in? A.—He was drunk.

Cross-examined by Attorney Johnson:

Q.—When did you see John Doyle go into those premises? A.—Some time prior to May 1 of last year.

Q.—How many suites are there in that building? A.—Ten.

Q.—Why didn't you arrest him? A.—I didn't see fit to.

Q.—Did you notify Tufts that a member of his force went into premises occupied by a woman conducting a house of ill fame? A.—No.

Q.—Have you any reason to suppose that one of his force went into the Howe woman's suite? A.—No.

Another police was made by Hurlburt to introduce the telephone call-book found on the premises. The court again excluded it.

Attorney Johnson arose and continued: Q.—Did you ever see Inspector Kreeland of Cambridge go into No. 253 Massachusetts avenue? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever see Officer Cole of Cambridge go in there? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—Will you say you have never seen either of them go in there? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—You know both of them well? A.—Yes.

TELLS OF PAPERS THEFT.

Allen took the witness: Q.—You had been detailed to watch the apartment of the Morse woman there previously? (Brownie Kennedy, also known as Morse). A.—Yes.

Q.—Was it the same suite? A.—Yes.

Q.—Mrs. Howe followed "Brownie" Kennedy to that place? A.—Yes.

The next witness was Michael J. Hayes of No. 105 Draper street, Dorchester. He admitted he was the man who entered the office of Daniel H. Coakley and removed papers which Attorney Hector Holmes had written on a piece of paper for him.

He testified that he received a paper in Attorney Holmes' handwriting outlining a list of papers that was desired he should take from Coakley's office.

He said the papers he took from Coakley's office were not on that list, and that the reason he didn't get the papers on the list was that he couldn't.

He testified that he saw the Mishawum Manor papers in Coakley's office, but did not take them. He said the only list which he got from Holmes was produced at the trial of Holmes and Attorney Robert B. Weston, charged with conspiracy to secure the larceny of the papers.

Cross-examined by Attorney Fletcher Ranney of counsel for Tufts, he said he was first employed by Godfrey Hart of the Watch and Ward in September or October of 1919, and worked until the following July.

FILETTER TOOK LIST.

Q.—What did you do with that paper containing the list of papers you were to take from Coakley's office? A.—The district attorney's office.

Q.—To whom? A.—To Assistant Filetter, took it at the time I was before the Grand Jury.

Witness could not recall that the list contained the following entries: Mishawum Manor, Abrams or Stearns. He said he could recall it contained "Emerson Motors, Bigelow, Lawrence and Cole." He said there were seven or eight names in all, but he could not recall the others. He remembered the list being in court at the time of the Weston and Holmes trial and that Attorney John P. Feeney, special Suffolk County assistant district attorney, questioned him about it.

Q.—Do you know what has become of that paper? A.—No.

Witness stated he saw the paper in an envelope relating to the Abrams case, but did not take them from Coakley's office.

Attorney Robert B. Weston was the next witness. He said that an indictment was returned against him and Mr. Holmes and that Mr. Hayes, preceding witness, had testified at that trial.

Weston objected when "steal" was used in connection with the removal of the papers.

His testimony was, briefly, to the same effect as that of Hayes. He said he understood Attorney Holmes made out a list of papers he wanted Hayes to get. He saw that paper at the time of his trial and Holmes, and heard it read.

OBJECTS TO "STEAL."

It did not, he insisted, contain the name of Mishawum Manor or that of Hiram Abrams. Under cross-examination by Attorney Ranney, for Tufts, he said the Mishawum Manor affair came before the bar association in the early part of 1919, when he drew up a complaint, which was filed by Godfrey Cabot and F. C. Allen with the committee on grievances of the bar association.

He denied that he had ever seen any Mishawum Manor papers. He admitted seeing papers in the Searns case, and he recalled seeing a picture in the Stearns case.

In connection with the word steal, he said: "I learned a list of papers had been furnished for Hayes—not to steal, but to remove."

Hayes was recalled and the list in the bill of exceptions, and said it didn't contain Mishawum Manor or the Hiram Abrams papers.

Next witness was Attorney Edward Stone of Lexington, who was a law partner of Hary C. Sawyer, now dead.

Stone testified as to the alleged $14,500 fee which Attorney Coakley testified he got from Sawyer out of the $65,000 that he got in the Mishawum Manor case.

Stone said he settle the claim of a man named Crane, who was threatening suits against one or more of the men at the Mishawum Manor affair.

NO RECEIPT FOR $14,500.

Stone testified that the firm settled accounts every month and that he received 37 per cent, Sawyer 37 per cent and a Mr. Morrison 37 per cent of all receipts. He said that Daniel H. Coakley came to see him early in June of this year and examined the books of the firm. Witness also examined the partnership books, beginning in May, 1917, and running through 1918.

He said that a regular set of books showing all fes and disbursements was kept.

Q.—Have you found any entry on your partnership books showing the receipts of $14,500 from Daniel H. Coakley? A.—No.

Q.—Did you examine the books? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you examine them with reference to the case of one Crane? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you find anything? A.—I did not.

He said: "I have searched the office and have found no such case. He also said he could not find any case of Crane against Lasky, Faker or Abrams or any case entitled "Mishawum Manor."

He could not find any entry of $2,500 on the partnership books, but he testified that he did find an entry on a private checkbook of Sawyer's on the American Trust Company which read, "Dep. June 28, cash $2,500." He said on the reverse side was the entry "Di Pietro, $50."

Keating Tells of Nol-Prossed Case

Testimony relating to alleged illegal sale of liquor at Mansion Inn, Wayland, was given at the resumption of the trial today. State Police Officer Arthur Keating of Somerville was the first witness.

This case was brought under paragraph 23 in Allen's information, which reads as follows:

"The District Attorney has from improper motives caused frivolous complaints to be brought, or has neglected to bring to the attention of the court in certain cases before the court for sentence the facts that such under the law were punishable by imprisonment or by both fine and imprisonment, and that by reason of his neglect to inform the court, that the law required the imposing of sentences of imprisonment or both fine and imprisonment upon persons guilty of the offences charged the defendants in the said cases were sentenced by the court to the payment of fines instead of to imprisonment or fine and imprisonment, as the law required."

State Officer Keating testified that in May, 1920, he served a summons upon A. Richard Neal of Wayland, proprietor of Wayland Inn, charging unlawful sale of liquor on May 16. He said he also served a summons on Neal in July, following up charging the exposure of liquor with intent to sell on July 10 and July 6, at the inn.

LIQUOR SOLD FREELY.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Henry F. Hurlburt read the complaint in the case, which was to the effect that Neal had pleaded not guilty, was adjudged guilty, fined $100 and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction.

The witness testified that these alleged violations of law occurred at the Mansion Inn in Wayland. He described the inn as a road house. He said liquor was sold freely there.

Police Officer Keating testified that he was instructed by Chief Plunkett of the Massachusetts State Police to "Go to the Mansion Inn and Dancing Hall; "I went up there with a party. I went into the place and sat down at a table and ordered food. The people I saw there were young men and women. IT WAS A JOYOUS PLACE."

Q.—Did you go there again? A.—I went there a second time and saw the same condition.

Witness testified that he received a notification card that the case was to come in in the Superior Court in East Cambridge on an appeal taken in the lower court.

MET BARNES AND HAYS.

"When I got to the courthouse," he continued, "I went to the district attorney's office and asked for Mr. Tufts. I was told he was not in. While I was there Mr. Barnes of Natick and Martin Hays, two attorneys, were coming out into the corridor."

Q.—Where did they come from? A.—They were in Mr. Tufts' office.

Q.—Did they speak to you? A.—Yes, they had a conversation with me. After that I came away."

Witness said that three months later he learned from the clerk of the court that the fine of $100 had been paid, but that the sentence of three months had been not pressed.

Letters which passed between State Officer Keating and District Attorney Tufts concerning the case were introduced and marked as exhibits. Witness was questioned about these letters and said he wrote to Tufts about the case because he had not been consulted about final disposition.

Q.—You spoke to a young man who said Tufts was not in? A.—Yes, it may have been Mr. Quinn or Mr. Spencer.

A letter dated January 30, 1918, written by Tufts to Keating, was read. Tufts said in it:

"I understand you made some comment about the disposition of the Neal case. That case came from the Wayland police. You did not tell us of your interest in the case and we had no knowledge of it."

"GOT A PROSE."

Witness identified another letter, which he sent to Tufts in reply. In it Keating said: "I felt that the chief prosecuting officer of this county should have heard my side of the case."

Witness reaffirmed that the men he saw leaving Mr. Tufts' office when he called there were Attorneys Barnes and Hays.

Another letter was introduced, showing that the witness had stated to Tufts that "he felt he got a front."

Further on in the letter witness said: "I am not to blame for being detailed by my superior in Middlesex County. I have made three raids in Wayland since last May. As it is a non-license town, it is now the way it should be."

Another letter, dated February 4, 1918, received by Keating from Tufts, referred to the letter Keating sent to him on January 31. In it, Tufts said: "I can still assure you I know nothing of your interest in the case. When the memo. was filed no mention of your interest in the case was made. I learned from Wayland that a person interested in the case there had stated you also had an interest. I remember that Mr. Barnes and Hays came in to see me. Your name was not sent in. My clerk told me you asked him if I was in. You did not send your card in to me. My assistant and I will be glad to discuss you at any time any interest you may have in any case."

INCIDENT CLOSED.

Still another letter was put in. It was from Keating to Tufts. Keating said: "The only notice I had of the case was the regulation post-card notice. One thing that seems funny to me is your willingness to make a disposition of the case without knowing the officer's side. The incident is closed, as far as I am concerned.

The defendant has moved from the town."

At this point a stir was caused when one of the spectators had an epileptic fit. He was removed.

Hurlburt then took up the case of Anna Paduch of Lowell.

Hurlburt, reading from the records, stated that Anna Paduch, Lena Hopner, Georgianna Curry, Frances Tosenko, Blanstra Macropoulos, Mary Sullivan, Helen Mavericik and Elizabeth Lascaris were found guilty in Lowell lower court on March 19, 1918, of practicing medicine without being properly registered, and fined $100 each.

He added that in the following September the cases of all were filed in the Superior Court upon payment of $10 as expenses, with the exception of the case of Sullivan appeal of which was fined $15, after a trial by jury. In the other cases there were no Superior Court trials.

Witness Keating, resuming the stand, said he was not consulted as to disposition of any of the cases except the Sullivan case. He said that Judge Fosdick, who was then a deputy district attorney, conferred with him as to the disposition of the Sullivan case.

He knew nothing of the other cases

Mystery Girl Took Stearns in Car to Apartment

In the deposition of Captain Charles E. Stearns, introduced at the Tufts trial, he describes the meeting with Miss Pennington that led to the alleged "frame up" that enabled his wife to secure a divorce.

Stearns declares he was visiting Hotel Chamberlin, Old Point Comfort, Va., while stationed at Fortress Monroe, and adds:

"I was conversing with an aviator when a young woman approached us in the hotel lobby. She said she wanted a prescription filled and wanted to know if we could recommend a drug store.

"We started a conversation. She told me that she was supported by a United States Senator and wanted a "good time." When I told her my home town she said she had relatives in Boston and that if I was there she would be glad to see me.

"I met Miss Pennington in Boston during my furlough. She invited me to ride with her. We went to Cambridge to an apartment.

"I took off my coat. I drank several highballs. Two men broke into the room. They said they were detectives in the employ of Attorney Daniel H. Coakley."

until after they had been disposed of, although he was the officer complaining.

ARRESTED AGAIN.

Keating said that Tufts did not talk to him as to disposition of the cases; nor did any of his assistants, except Judge Fosdick.

Q.—At this time was your department trying to suppress the illegal practice of medicine in this State? Question excluded.

Witness said he knew of the disposition of the Anna Paduch case prior to March 5, 1918, but added that she was later arrested again and given three months in the House of Correction, and that he didn't know of the disposition of that case until about six months ago, when he learned of it from a clerk of the court.

He said that was the case that was put in here. Attorney Melvin M. Johnson, counsel for Tufts, said: "Understand there was no obligatory prosecution in this class of cases for a second offence." Hurlburt said he would furnish the court with a copy of the statute.

ELOPING PAIR RETURNING TO SEEK FORGIVENESS FROM SPOUSES

PASTOR TO "SEE" HIS WIFE

New York, July 19.—The elopement of Mrs. Clarke Dures, of Monticello, N. Y., a week ago with young Earl Vernooy seemed destined for shipwreck today.

Mrs. Dures was on the way back to her husband and Vernooy was planning to ask forgiveness of his wife.

Clarke Dures, the unordained minister, when appraised at Monticello of his wife's change of heart, said:

"I'll see her when she comes. Certainly I'll take her back if I can, but I don't see how I can. I have sold my home and everything else. I'll see her, anyway, when she comes."

Mrs. Vernooy said, when informed that her youthful husband was on his way back to her:

"I'll find out what he has got to say."

The elopers, with Mrs. Dures's twelve-year-old daughter, Gladys, left the home of Policeman Joseph Borowski, in Rutherford, N. Y., in Vernooy's automobile "to avoid reporters," they said. They started for Beacon, N. Y., in hopes of finding the pastor there, but when they arrived he had just left for Monticello.

At Beacon the couple said that Vernooy had lost his job as a carpenter in Rutherford because of the notoriety. Vernooy seemed very anxious to get back to his wife, and Mrs. Durea was much disappointed at not finding her husband.

A number of the members of the campmeeting at Beacon, friends of Pastor Dures, asked them both to interview Chief of Police Theodore Moight. Chief Moight said, however, that he could not place any charges against the couple. City Judge Hoyt interviewed them.

They both declared they were tired of their experiment and wished to get back to their respective firesides. Mrs. Durea said that she would be satisfied henceforth if her husband took care of her. Vernooy seemed apprehensive of his reception.

ALLEGED TAX DODGING CONSPIRATORS INDICTED

Washington, July 19.—Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair's campaign against tax dodgers progressed when a grand jury here returned indictments charging conspiracy to defraud the government against Harry C. Weston, former chief of the Personal Service division on the income tax limit, and George E. Dombhart and Charles E. Bonde, former income tax unit employes, but now of Chicago. It is alleged that Bondeson and Dombhart, as income tax experts, in Chicago, worked with Weston in the bureau here in the interests of their clients.

Hugh B. Sorrels, another income tax employe, was also indicted by the grand jury, it being alleged that he acted as a tipster for George W. Sutton, a local attorney, who is alleged to have secured clients through information from Sorrels.

WOMAN TARRED AND FEATHERED BY MOB

Center, Texas, July 19.—Rigid investigation was begun here to ascertain the identity of a band of masked men who Saturday night tarred and feathered Mrs. Beulah Johnson at Tenaha, Texas, near here.

Mrs. Johnson, employed as a cook in a Tenaha hotel, is facing a charge of bigamy, but was released on bail to appear before a grand jury. She was taken from the hotel by three automobile loads of masked men and driven several miles into the country. Her clothes were taken from her and she was made to stand nude before her captors while a coat of tar and feathers was applied.

120 Love Letters Back Up Her Suit, Says Jilted Girl

New York, July 19.—When Marie Gruner of No. 5 East Seventieth street, on July 29, 1918, met Adolph Levi of No. 25 Waverly place, in Japan, he proposed, she alleges in a complaint against him. She accepted, she says, and later, in this city, he told her he would prefer death to life without her.

However, last April, after Miss Gruner had given up her position as companion to a wealthy and socially prominent woman, he went abroad to get rid of a marriage contracted by him when a minor, she says. He wrote her she was "better off without him."

Miss Gruner says she has at least twenty love missives he sent her between July, 1918, and April, 1921. She asks $25,000 for breach of promise.

DEMAND RANSOM FOR MAN HELD IN OHIO

Kidnapers Threaten to Slay Captive Unless $50,000 Is Paid Promptly

By International News Service.

Sharon, Pa., July 19.—Thomas Randolph, thirty-six years old, a prominent business man of this city, today is being held captive at Youngstown, O., by kidnapers, who demand $50,000 ransom. They demand prompt payment and declare they will kill Randolph unless the money is forthcoming.

Randolph was lured to Youngstown last night by a false telephone message. Letters were received here today from the kidnapers and from Randolph himself.

A message Randolph sent to his father read:

"For God's sake get me away from these fellows. Pay whatever they demand."

NAVY'S METHOD OF PROBING VICE SCORED

Senate Committee Raps Officials for Practices at Newport Training Station

By International News Service.

Washington, July 19.—Serious charges of a most revolting nature in connection with the vice investigations at the naval training station at New port, R. I., in 1919, were aired today by the report of the Senate naval affairs committee which conducted an investigation of the charges.

The committee in its report declares that: "Immoral acts were practiced under the instructions or suggestions, by a number of the enlisted personnel of the United States Navy, in and out of uniform, for the purpose of securing evidence—and authorization for the use of these enlisted men as operators or detectives was given, both orally and in writing, to Lieutenant Hudson and Assistant Secretary Franklin D. Roosevelt, with the knowledge and consent of Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy."

Roosevelt was prompt to make reply to the charges. He charged "bad faith" on the part of Senator Ball of Delaware, chairman of the investigating committee, in failing to permit him to make a complete statement on his side of the case.

DENIE KNOWING METHODS.

"As an American, irrespective of party, one hates to see the United States, an organization of the nation, not of party, used as a vehicle for cheap ward politics," Roosevelt said. "It rather amuses me to know that these Republican Senators consider me worth while attacking so maliciously and savagely. Perhaps they may later on learn what a boomerang is."

Roosevelt denies that he knew of the investigation methods being used at Newport and stated that when he learned of conditions he gave immediate orders to stop them.

The committee report not only charges that Daniels and Roosevelt "showed a lack of moral perspective," but bitterly criticises Lieutenant Commander M. Hudson and Ervin Arnold, a chief petty officer and former Connecticut detective in charge of the investigating squad, for the methods they pursued in conducting investigations of alleged immorality in Newport.

USE OF ENLISTED MEN DEPLORED

"The spirit and code of the American citizen was violated by instructions of certain Navy Department officials," said the committee report, "and the rights of every American boy who enlisted in the navy to fight for his country were utterly ignored. It is doubtful, in the minds of the committee, if such an immoral condition as presented can be found in the annals of the United States Navy."

The committee refused to comment on the guilt or innocence of Rev. Samuel Ireland and others arrested on charges brought about after investigation by the special squad under Lieutenant Hudson, but deplores the manner of investigation and the testimony of men in uniform were permitted to give.

The committee recommends a thorough investigation of naval court martial methods, charging that men were confined for long terms before being brought to trial and recommends that investigations of immorality by the use of enlisted men, shall be prohibited.

FALL RIVER MOTHER HELD FOR DESERTION

Skowhegan, Me., July 19.—Alice M. Holt, alias Lillian A. Stanton, 20 years old, of Fall River, wanted by the Fall River police on a charge of deserting her baby, was arrested here by Sheriff Thibodeau. She is being held for the Fall River police. According to police officers, the woman went to a family in the South End section of Fall River and secured board for her baby, which was a few weeks old. The police say she left the baby at the house and then dropped out of sight and has not paid any board money or been heard from since.

TO CUT GAS PRICE IF LAWRENCE DROPS PROBE

Lawrence, July 19.—Through counsel, the Lawrence Gas Company has announced a cut of ten cents per thousand feet in the price of gas and one-half a cent per kilowatt in the price of electricity, to go into effect August 1, on the condition that the city government quit its fight against the company.

A special meeting of the city council will take place today for the purpose of deciding whether or not the council will press its petition with the State Commission on Public Utilities for an investigation into the local gas and electric rates.

CAVALRY TROOP OFF FOR PLYMOUTH CELEBRATION

Burlington, Vt., July 19.—Troop C, Third Cavalry, of Fort Ethan Allen, started today for Plymouth, where they will serve as part of the escort to President Harding during the tercentenary exercises in that town, August 1. The troop will stay there for a short time at Camp Devens and return there after the functions at Plymouth to give manoeuvres for the Organized Reserves and Citizens' Military Training Camp.

MAY CURB RIOTING WITH CHEESE VAPORS

That the new gas intended to put mobs out of commission when they threaten violence may be made of mouldy cheese was the opinion expressed today by chemists of the Chemical Warfare Service of the First Corps Area.

Experiments are being made with certain decayed matter which can be transformed into a gas which has a soporific effect without during much material harm.

BROKER REPLIES TO CHARGES OF WIFE

Mayo Breaks Silence to Answer Accusation About Other Women

New York, July 19.—"With respect to my wife's statement about my relations with other women, I defy her to name any such woman or women."

Ray Alfred Mayo, broker, made a complete denial of charges by Charlotte Catherine Mayo, in answer to her suit for divorce.

Mr. Mayo made his statement in the office of Anton Siegal, his attorney, at No. 1540 Broadway, following a brief call there by his son, Talledge, born of a previous marriage. The son is now twenty-three, just two years his stepmother's junior, Mr. Mayo continued:

"This is my first public utterance since my wife disappeared with my baby, Charlotte. I have not made any derogatory statement about her; I believe that my conduct has been that of a white man thus far, but her statements in the press are of such sort that I am compelled, out of pure self-respect, to come out of my silence."

Mr. Mayo said that on request of his wife and an Intercollegiate he had caused his attorney, before proceeding with the service of papers, to "lay down certain terms and conditions for an adjustment of his affair in an amicable manner."

Then, he declared, after "days of procrastination" on his wife's part, summons and complaint were served. He added:

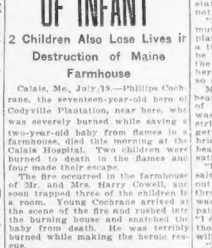
"Now that the matter has been started, I intend by all legitimate and fair means, to prosecute this matter to a final conclusion, and I mean to get the custody of my baby, because I know that she is not now in proper or suitable hands.

"To show my absolute fairness and lack of venom in the matter, I permitted my wife to remove her clothes from my apartment at No. 924 West End avenue."

Millionaire Long's Bride, 4 Times Wed, Unconcerned About Honeymoon Trip

MILLIONAIRE LONG'S BRIDE AND HIS ESTATE

Mrs. Richard H. Long, three divorced and four times married, and the beautiful Framingham estate of the millionaire shoe manufacturer, of which his former typist has become the mistress.



RICHARD H. LONG

Former Typist Anxious to Learn to Ride Horseback; Loves to Paddle Canoe

Three times divorced and four times married, Mrs. Richard H. Long, former stenographer in the office of her millionaire husband, is not disturbed nor greatly concerned regarding plans for a honeymoon.

The bride of the prominent shoe manufacturer, who was twice a candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, when interviewed at the beautiful Long estate in Framingham, seemed at ease in her luxurious surroundings.

Appearing to possess a retiring disposition, the former Laura L. Pratt stated that for the present she would not leave on a honeymoon trip.

"Plans for a honeymoon," murmured the little bride, "we have no plans for a honeymoon. Maybe, after a time, we shall go off somewhere to be by ourselves—but not now. For the present we are going to stay right here. There is so much to be done—so much for me to learn."

Mrs. Long, who is a brunette, with beautiful soft, dark eyes, shows traces of her French-Canadian birth. She was attractively gowned in a brown striped sport skirt with brown georgette waist and suede slippers. The bride is of medium height with a beautiful figure, and wore her black satiny hair combed low on her neck.

"I can paddle a canoe and I love it," said Mrs. Long as she stood looking out over the river which winds through the beautiful estate. A canoe was drying off after a fresh coat of paint in the shadows near the porch. "I do not ride horseback, but with those lovely horses in that field, I will learn.

"I am French," said Mrs. Long. "Canadian French. I was born there and lived for a short time with my parents. Later they moved to Worcester, and are now living in Shrewsbury."

At this juncture a little eleven-year-old girl with laughing brown eyes and yellow hair, cut Dutch fashion, slipped into the room and was a most interested spectator during the remainder of the interview.

Mrs. Long, who is thirty-five, gave this as her third marriage on the license issue. She was wedded first in October, 1904, to Ira St. James, a French-Canadian. She was later divorced and married N. H. Brown, whom she divorced and remarried, the last decree being granted in May, 1920.

Long's first wife was killed in an aeroplane accident at Salisbury Beach, July 19, 1920, leaving five children.

FIRE HERO DIES AFTER RESCUE OF INFANT

2 Children Also Lose Lives in Destruction of Maine Farmhouse

Calais, Me., July 19.—Phillips Cochrane, the seventeen-year-old hero of Codyville Plantation, near here, who was severely burned while saving a two-year-old baby from flames in a farmhouse, died this morning at the Calais Hospital. Two children were burned to death in the flames and four made their escape.

The fire occurred in the farmhouse of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cowell, and soon trapped three of the children in a room. Young Cochrane arrived at the scene of the fire and rushed into the burning house and snatched the baby from death. He was terribly burned while making the heroic rescue.

The farmhouse caught fire while the parents were absent. The surviving children are too dazed to explain how it all happened.

TREMONT TRUST CLAIMS MAY BE PAID IN FULL

French Tells Court That Directors Are Ready to Reorganize Bank

In a hearing in the Supreme Court today on a petition of Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen for leave to compound or compromise certain claims against the closed Tremont Trust Company, Asa P. French, who on behalf of the directors opposed the petition, said that the bank might pay dollar for dollar, and that the directors stood ready to furnish any amount of capital to reorganize the bank.

The particular matter brought to his attention of the court arose out of liens on the schooner Tremont, which W. Rodman Peabody, liquidating agent of the Tremont Trust Company, said was owned by the trust company, although the record title was not in its name.

An auditor who examined the claims reported that the sum of $32,500 should be allowed to the claimants, and Mr. Peabody stated to the court that a settlement of these could be effected for between $26,000 and $27,000.

The plan apparently has only to obtain the assent of the full membership of the Association of Railway Executives. It proceeds directly out of conferences which have been held in Washington for the last two weeks and is believed to have the full sanction of the government.

WARRANT OFFICERS WEAR NEW INSIGNIA

Warrant officers of the First Corps area appeared today with their new insignia. The insignia represents an eagle flying upwards, typifying the rising of an army field clerk to the rank of a warrant officer.

The new insignia is not popular with many non-commissioned officers, who would prefer to wear a Sam Browne belt.

PEABODY MAN DIES OF ASPHYXIATION

Peabody, July 19.—Angelo Tagliono, thirty-four years old, of No. 12 Wheeler street, was found dead in the bedroom of his home with the gas jet turned on from a stove. Medical Examiner Foster pronounced death due to asphyxiation. Tagliono was married a month ago to a pretty twenty-two-year-old Italian girl. The young bride is heart-broken.

ARMY OFFICER HURT DURING RIFLE MATCH

Major J. R. Birdsall of Atlanta, Ga., while shooting today at the Wakefield range in the united service matches at that place, was injured by the premature discharge of his rifle. Fragments of the rifle entered his face and right eye. He was removed to the naval hospital and is now under the care of an eye specialist.

HUNDREDS LOSE IN CORNSTALK JUICE SCHEME

Autos Refuse to Run on It Alone and Promoter Goes to Jail

New York, July 19.—Cornstalk juice may have uses hitherto unsuspected. Today it drove several hundred gullible Brooklyn investors frantic and started Stanislaus C. Papp to prison for a term of years. But it won't run an automobile.

Papp had a great idea. To the trusting he explained that cornstalk juice was a "vegetable diesel," the perfect substitute for gasoline, and that he was erecting a $700,000 plant to manufacture it and revolutionize the motor industry. The idea was to gather in an much capital as possible from subscribers, mostly foreign born, before the authorities picked up his trail.

Today he pleaded guilty to six grand larceny indictments and was sentenced to jail for a term of from two and a half to five years.

In a demonstration, staged before War Department representatives and noted chemists, Papp had made an automobile run on his vegetable fuel—plus a liberal dose of gasoline from a secret tube concealed in the tank.

NORTH ADAMS FACES AN ICE SHORTAGE

North Adams, July 19.—Unless colder weather arrives this city's supply of ice will be exhausted within the next seven weeks, according to an estimate made by one dealer. The unusually warm Summer has resulted in an increased demand for ice and a consequently diminishing of the supply.

$50,000 IMPROVEMENT AT DUDLEY ST. CHURCH

The Dudley Street Baptist Church will be remodelled with the enlargement of the organ at an expense of over $50,000. Rolling partitions have been added to the vestry. Rev. Arthur T. Brooks is spending his vacation at Ideal Beach, N. J.

PLAN TO FUND EXPENDITURES ON RAILWAYS

Committee to Submit Scheme to Executives After Seeing Officials

New York, July 19.—The plan for funding the government's expenditures for additions and betterments during Federal control of the railroads has been agreed on by the steering committee of the Association of Railway Executives and officials of the government with whom the committee has been in conference at Washington. It will be submitted to the full body of the association at a meeting tomorrow afternoon in the New Haven board room.

No intimation of the character of the plan thus tentatively agreed on has been given. It is not yet known whether the War Finance Corporation will be called in as a part of the funding process, but it is believed that the plan will follow suggestions made in Washington dispatches of the last few days, which stated that the War Finance Corporation would figure in the funding.

The plan apparently has only to obtain the assent of the full membership of the Association of Railway Executives. It proceeds directly out of conferences which have been held in Washington for the last two weeks and is believed to have the full sanction of the government.

President Discusses New Loan to Railroads

By International News Service.

Washington, July 19.—President Harding made another attempt today to relieve the railroad situation, approaching it with a view to providing relief for the steam lines without imposing additional tax burdens on the nation. The President conferred with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Senator Cummins of Iowa, chairman of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, and discussed the proposal for lending the railroads $400,000,000 for improvements and betterments, seeking to determine the effect of such action on taxation.

MILITARY BURIALS FOR FOUR ROXBURY HEROES

Military funerals for four Roxbury men who lost their lives overseas were held in Roxbury today. Members of various American legion posts attended the services. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Joseph's Church for Lieutenant Eugene Galligan, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. T. Galligan, No. 84 Warren street. Burial was at Holywood Cemetery. Services were held at St. Francis de Sales church for Corporal Thomas J. Burke of B Company, 32nd Infantry. Members of the James F. Mahoney Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, acted as escort. Burial was at St. Joseph's Cemetery. At St. John's Church services were held for Corporal Eugene T. Zanni of No. 52 Savin street. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden. Last rites for Private Joseph Mack were celebrated at St. Philip's Church for Private John C. Peterson of No. 4 Davis place.

OLD NINTH REGIMENT TO BE GAS OBJECTIVE

Camp Devens, July 19.—The old Ninth Regiment will soon be given a dose of chlorascetophenone, a deadly gas which is being manufactured on one of the islands off Boston harbor. Masks will be furnished the guardsmen with explicit instructions how to put them on in a hurry.

CONNOLLY TELLS OF DARING ESCAPE FROM PRISON CAMP

James B. Connolly, the famous New England author and journalist, who was sent to Ireland to investigate the charge that "no relief money was getting to Ireland, but was being used to buy arms for the Irish army," and that there was "no distress in Ireland anyhow," has returned filled with horror at the things he has seen and heard in that "most distressful country."

It has the vivid personal touch of the expert writer who knows what he is writing about and writes with his heart in every word.

TORTURED IRELAND

By JAMES B. CONNOLLY,
Famous New England Author and Journalist.

I grinned at him, having in mind a vision of the hosts of American men, women and—yes, children—who had given to the American funds and what ninety per cent. or so of them would say to that loyalty to the British government now.

I asked him then if he knew of any American relief money being used for the purchase of arms or ammunition for the Irish army.

No he knew of none. (The chief of staff in Dublin had made the same admission.)

His air about this time had tried to slip in a little propaganda. He got on to the matter of my name, which as it happens is a very Irish one.

"How long must men born of Irishmen in America be living there before they can be good Americans?" I barked at him.

"Oh, I should say two generations," he answered.

IRISH ALWAYS LOYAL.

"You should say? Too bad you haven't the say of it, isn't it?" And I stood up and delivered myself of a resonant oration.

"According to you, I can't be a good American. Why, when sixty odd years ago my father set foot on a dock over in East Boston he was a good American. He believed in liberty; because he so believed he elected to have his children born in America.

"We have people over there who were born good Americans, and never will be; but very few of them are of Irish descent. My father never submitted his mind to governmental schools here in the belief that he was born to citizenship in the mightiest and most beneficient empire on earth.

"His loyalty to his new country was not weakened by the thought that this new country of his might some day become more powerful than the mighty empire he was leaving behind.

"The stuff about the Irish-American makes me very tired. Men of Irish blood in America have always been loyal to the flag which sheltered them. They furnished their full proportion of men to fight for America in every war from the Revolution down."

And the records are to the effect that they were not usually the kind who looked for cushy jobs far from the firing line. They fought well. As well as the men of any race from any country. You agree with me that men of Irish blood have fought well on whatever field they fought?"

ADMITS IRISH FIGHT WELL.

"Oh, yes, of course, the Irish fight well."

"Irish-Americans?" I went on, "a term invented by a class in my country who like neither the Irish nor America for their own reasons."

"Ah!" butted in the General, "but I have heard men of Irish blood use the term."

"So have I; but they were ignorant or unthinking. I am of Irish blood and without disrespect to what blood you may be of I am glad that I am of Irish blood."

A man runs a risk quoting himself overmuch, but I quote that for a purpose. That Irish-American stuff is ancient English propaganda, given currency almost entirely by people in America who are for England first and America afterward.

This little speech ended the side's propaganda talk of the Irish in America.

I said then: "General, we have a delusion in our country that an American can go where he pleases in Ireland without interference from the military."

STRICKLAND SCARED.

"Where do you wish to go most?"

"Queenstown. And then Limerick and the Tipperary country from here. Could I call on your General Cameron in Limerick, say, without a special permit and"—

He eyed me sardonically. "Do you know what would happen to you if you tried it? You would go, up to General Cameron's barracks. You would be met at the gate by three armed sentries. One would say to you: 'Have you an appointment with General Cameron?' You of course would have to say no.

"At once two or three more would press a revolver up against your stomach—like this—" Strickland illustrated the action on me, and then as he did so he looked around for his aide to see. But there was no aide there. It was the one moment he chose to leave the room during all the time I was there.

A queer look came into Strickland's pale eyes. "Far be it from me to hint that the C in C of all the Black and Tans in the war zone and a professional soldier had a fear for his own safety, but a moment before this I had been swinging my arms and talking loudly in defense of the Irish in America, and he was now all alone with me. He passed his hands quickly, speculatively, over me in the manner of the military searching for arms—they would go over you like this—to see if you were armed"—he spoke feebly and over my every pocket went the General's spasmodic hands.

LOOKS RELIEVED.

I had my big pipe in my left hip pocket, a bunch of newspaper clippings in my right coat pocket and my passport, money wallet and three or four letters in my upper inside pocket, which left me bulging only in the Cameron noticable places. The General's nervous hands gave these three places the most convulsive grips. He stepped back from the examination looking relieved, or so I thought, most relieved.

I can't explain his action in any other way that that he must have thought, for a moment, that I might have come there to shoot him. Now no man could hope to kill an English commanding general three stories up and a couple of thousand armed men around and get away alive, but those wild I. A. R. men have tried things as wild, and no telling what they might try next—perhaps the old chap had a right to be scared.

From Cork I took a run down to Queenstown. In the harbor of Queenstown was a detention camp, Spike Island, one of those outdoor places where men, Irishmen who were not told why they were arrested, were kept.

The day before I reached Queenstown one of them, the young fellow, White, had been shot "trying to escape." He and a few other prisoners had been roofing a hall around, it seems and it had bounced beyond the wired enclosure. The sentry had given him permission to get it. He had gone and then the sentry had pumped the lead into him.

That same night a regiment of Camerons rounded up everybody in the streets of the city. A friend whom I had known from the destroyer days of 1917 was coming home with his daughter when one of the Camerons jumped out of the shrubbery near his home and thrust a revolver into his stomach, this by way of halting him. All were good and quiet citizens halted everywhere.

SAYES AMERICAN CONSUL.

The American consul was told to halt, but being hard of hearing he was passing on without taking notice. The manager of the Land Bank (the Sinn Fein bank), jumped to him in time to save the consul from being shot by the Cameron patrol.

"If he had been shot," said the man telling the story, "you would have another Sinn Fein outrage for your American press, for your consul is notoriously pro-English and of course it could be only the I. R. A. who killed him."

After rounding up the people of the city, the military herded them in front of the Queen's Hotel on West Beach. Here everybody was searched. An old Irish piper came along playing Irish tunes.

Some of the young fellows waiting, to be searched began to dance, which the Cameron officer did not like. They should have been more frightened. The women and girls in the meantime were run into the Queen's hotel and there searched by the crown's women spies for bombs and revolvers. They did not find any.

MacSWINEY'S ESCAPE.

The Camerons were not as bad as the Black and Tans, contenting themselves with small outrages. The shooting of the prisoner White and the rounding up of the Queen's own people was probably by way of reprisal "for the escape" of three men from the detention camp on Spike Island, in Queenstown Harbor.

One of the three was a brother of Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork, who preferred to die of hunger in an English prison than to admit the English right to arrest him.

The escape of MacSwiney and his two chums had the whole city laughing. On Spike Island was a tennis court for the use of the garrison officers. It had to be kept in good condition. It was the job of a sergeant-major to see that it was so kept, prisoners having to do the work of keeping it in trim.

MacSwiney on one day looking through the wire fence of the pen when the sergeant-major passed, MacSwiney, who was a heavy-built, powerful man, addressed the soldier, saying: "As you see, I am a man who should have exercise. And I've more of the use of my feet in mind. We will be glad to mow the court for you for the exercise of it, won't we?" turning to his companions.

"We will," said one.

The other said he would also, provided they would tell how to mow it properly. He did not want to have his head hashed in by a rifle butt because he didn't do it right.

"Oh, I'll have you do it right, no fear," said the sergeant-major.

So MacSwiney and his two chums went down on all fours, the sergeant-Major, after the official permission had been secured, and the I-N-F carefully instructed them in the mowing work. The Sergeant-Major was much pleased with the way they took hold. He assured them that they could have it for a steady job. He used to stand one side and watch them.

That was all right. Several days later they started to step-pped down to the water front and inquired for a Captain O'Regan who, they had been told, had a fast motor boat to rent. O'Regan was not there, but his motor boat was. The young men said they would take the boat and settle with O'Regan on their return. They hoisted the Union Jack in the stern of the boat and went scooting across the harbor.

Over on Spike Island that same morning some officers came down at their usual hour for their game of tennis. Arriving near the court they were very much displeased to see the lawn mower lying in the middle of the court and the Sergeant-Major on his side evidently asleep.

"He's drunk, the beast!" said one of the officers and rapped him with the toe of his boot. "I've a good mind—but oh, I say, what's this?"

They saw that the Sergeant-Major was tied hands and feet and gagged with his own handkerchief. They untied and ungaged him and he explained how he'd no more .lea what was in their minds when they —the three prisoners, he meant— they leaped onto him and—"as you see, sir."

"But what was the sentry doing all this time?"—meaning the armed soldiers who pairolled the water's edge nearby.

"I'm sure I don't know sir. I was quite busy on my own, sir."

They went looking for the sentry, and found him, tied and bound and gagged also. His rifle was gone.

GOMPERS MAKES FEEBLE ATTACK ON SOVIETS

Repeats Old Lies About Bolshevism in His New Book, Says Hapgood

By NORMAN HAPGOOD,
Staff Correspondent of Boston American.

Washington, July 19. — Samuel Gompers has written a book. That is often a useless thing to do. Gompers is worse than useless. It is part of the ignorant and harmful agitation that has continually keeping up about things that are none of his concern.

His book, just published, is called "Out of Their Own Mouths." It is a reiteration of all the noise he has been making about the Russian government. In the main it is a laborious compilation, made by his co-author, William English Walling, of extracts from Bolshevik speeches filled to produce scares.

Mr. Gompers begins with a foreword, recommending himself as an authority on the Soviets. He says he has "been under the necessity of observing the Bolshevist movement from close quarters for many years."

Why throw in that phrase about close quarters? Mr. Gompers' office in Washington is close to Mr. Bakhmetev, and to the State Department, but not close to Moscow.

But it seems the close quarters were before the revolution happened. "I have had no friends with it almost daily long before it seized the power in Russia in the name of Communism and Soviet. Trotzky is only one of the Bolshevist leaders who long sojourned in this country to plague the American labor movement."

That is a fairly good test of the author's candor. Just how long, Mr. Gompers, was Trotsky in this country, and how long did you intend to make your readers think he was here?

Apart from generally barking about the conceded shortcomings of Bolshevism the main purpose of this book, which can be procured from E. P. Dutton & Co. for two dollars, is to attack those countries—including all the principal countries except Japan, France and the United States which think it wise to admit that the Bolshevist government exists, just as certainly as the Tsar's government existed before it.

The representatives of Great Britain, Germany, Norway and a dozen other countries who are trying to find methods of dealing their capital with Soviet, according to the author, "cynical imperialists and capitalist exploiters." Mr. Gompers feels that the American government is too pure to do business with such naughty people.

Why does Mr. Gompers insist on plunging into these controversies? Why does he keep up exploding firecrackers at Germany and Russia?

The idea that it will help him in his internal politics. Representing the group in American labor that believes new ideas and new methods are fatal, he has as a North Star of his policy to keep the public very full of holes and goblins. Therefore he keeps up the war against Germany and wages relentless campaigns against trade with Russia.

One of the funniest things in the book is the statement that the Bolsheviks and the Reactionaries resort to "deliberate violence" to destroy his branch of the labor movement.

As soon as he has gotten this charge fully off his chest he turns around and says it is the Liberals who are responsible for the notorious tolerance shown toward Bolshevism on all hands; by which he means the State Department, the New York Times, Nicholas Murray Butler, Judge Gary and the bishop of New York.

What grieves him most of all, perhaps, is that in the contest of propaganda the Bolsheviks have such an advantage. They control the entire governmental propaganda (ally issuing from Washington, they have their absolute say in the offices of the great dailies throughout the United States, their gospel is defended in all the fashionable clubs and pulpits and college presidents give all their honorary degrees to exponents of communism.

The chapter in which this sad tale is explained is called "America and the Soviets."

There is no use playing ping-pong too elaborately with this preposterous book. It quotes Kropotkin, but carefully leaves out the fact that he supports the Soviets. It does the same thing with Gorki. It cites the Quakers, without indicating that their noble work is unfortunately interfered with by people of the Gompers type.

He repeats old, old lies, long ago exposed, like the statement about why the Bolsheviks could not accept the famous Nansen proposal. Anybody who wants a lesson in propaganda might read Chicherin's statement about why that proposal was rejected now and then read the alleged abstract of it put out by our State department.

Fresh From Paris

PARIS, France.

ALMOST any shade of red is smart this Summer, from the vivid cherry, poppy, geranium and pimento and the Genoese hues of cyclamen, Van Dyke, mauve and sumach. The bright shades are most popular for sport hats and coats and daytime dress trimmings, with the rose tones appearing more and more frequently in the evening. Cherry red taffeta is strikingly combined with white crepe in an afternoon dress of slender outline, blousing a little at the natural waist line. There are a turned over collar and wide, flaring cuffs of the cherry taffeta.

BLACK crepe couldn't conscientiously be trimmed with anything this season but white crepe. The little dress at the right uses it in narrow bands to trim the collar and bias opening of the surplice bodice, as well as banding the section at the front of the skirt and the pleated tunic. It also makes the soft sash, tieing it one side. A quilled crepe ruffle edges the white crepe hat and a red rose is placed beneath the side brim.

LAYS FAILURES OF FARMERS TO DISTRIBUTION

California Economist Urges Agrarians to Organize and Advertise

By International News Service.

New York, July 19.—"Farmers' failures have been the farmers' fault."

Joseph Shapiro, the brilliant young California economist sent 100 county agents of the Farm Bureau Federation of New York back to their constituents today with this message ringing in their ears. The solution, Shapiro said, lies in co-operative distribution and merchandising.

"Don't blame the middleman, the retailer, or the profiteer," Shapiro declared, speaking at a dinner given the agents by the North American Fruit Exchange at the Hotel Commodore. "The fault is yours. Organize your selling co-operative. Advertise. Tell the public 'Apples are coming. Potatoes are coming. Buy now and buy in quantities and you can buy cheaply.'"

The farmers' problem, according to Shapiro, is to so organize distribution that the retailer can sell with an eye to volume, not margin. When that is done, the farmer will get a fair price for his product and the consumer will get the produce at a fair price.

Every other industry in the world distributes on a co-operative basis. Farm produce has been dumped on the market in competition with itself, so that only 25 per cent reaches the consumer. The result is a shortage of food, high prices for it by the consumer, and loss to the farmer.

PAWNBROKER FORCED TO RETURN STOLEN CLOTHES

Lawrence, July 19.—A Lawrence pawnbroker was forced to return a stolen suit valued at $45 without cost to its owner, as a result of a court order issued in district court here by Judge J. J. Mahoney in the case of John Lyons who was arraigned on a charge of stealing from William Bird. The clothing had been stolen from a Sumner camp and pawned. The police inspectors on the case were refused assistance by the pawnbroker.

VICTIM OF AMNESIA REMAINS A MYSTERY

Providence, July 19.—"John Doe," the amnesia victim who entered the Rhode Island Hospital on the night of June 15, remains as much as a mystery as ever to the authorities.

Although the patient sleeps well, has a good appetite and is willing to work, he declares he is unable to recall his name, where he lived or any facts regarding his past life.

He reads and writes well and is believed to have been well educated.

LIQUOR DELUGE INUNDATING WORCESTER

Police Report Arrests for Drunkenness Already Total 166 for Month

Worcester, July 19. — Moonshine liquor, flowing into this city in ever-increasing quantities, has boosted police and hospital records to an alarming extent, according to local authorities.

At least one man has died during the past week from so-called moonshine, several have been rendered seriously ill, and a drowning tragedy at Lake Quinsigamond is also laid at liquor's door.

Arrests for drunkenness are on the increase, and frequent raids have yielded a large number of stills.

So far this month there have been 166 arrests for drunkenness, and the police believe a new record will have been established before the first of August.

Deputy Chief of Police Thomas McMurray declared that there was as much liquor coming in here as was manufactured in the city, and that the local officials are powerless. He said that all the police can do is to follow up cases started by the Federal officers.

According to Dr. Edward P. Disbrow, assistant superintendent of the City hospital, the number of cases of alcoholism admitted during the first six months of 1921 is larger than the number admitted during the corresponding months the previous year.

The physician further stated that the number of men admitted during the month of July is much larger than the number admitted during any of the previous months of the current year.

HARDING HEARS NEW SOLDIERS' BONUS PLAN

Washington, July 19.—President Harding was urged to lend his support to a plan for using the interest on the $10,000,000,000 owed the United States by foreign governments for paying the adjusted compensation to veterans of the World War as provided in the bill recently recommitted in the Senate, the plan was outlined to the President by Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr. of New York. The suggestion provides that bonds be issued by the United States, with the interest as a security, and that the bonds be turned over to former soldiers in lieu of a cash bonus.

STATE WARD HELD ON FORGED CHECK CHARGE

Brockton, July 19.—Arthur F. Babson, a boy State ward, was arrested, charged with passing forged checks for sums amounting to about $150. The boy, who was placed by the State Board of Charities in the home of Miss Alice Adams, No. 159 Perkins avenue, Brockton, is said to have had his bankbook in his possession with a forged order for $40.

ENGLISH STRONG FOR DISARMING, BRYCE SAYS

Trend of British Public Opinion for World Peace, Declares Former Ambassador

New York, July 19.—"There are no two opinions in England regarding the proposed disarmament conference at Washington this Fall," declared Viscount Bryce, British author of "The American Commonwealth," who arrived here with Lady Bryce from England.

"The entire British nation favors disarmament," he stated emphatically. "Personally I consider the proposed conference the best way to arrive at highly desirable ends.

"Now is the time if ever we are to put disarmament into effect."

Viscount Bryce, who will spend two months or more in this country touring, will take no part in the disarmament conferences.

"I am here as a private citizen," he said.

"I am going down to Washington—but not to stay. No one can live in Washington in the summer."

Viscount Bryce experienced Washington heat when British ambassador to the United States.

"The trend of public opinion in my country is towards universal peace," Viscount Bryce said, "and it is considered the height of foolishness to go on supplying large armies and navies.

"Furthermore, no nation with the exception of the United States can afford to go to war. We, in Europe, have no money.

"America has more money than all the world put together."

Viscount Bryce declined to comment on the Eastern aspect of the proposed Washington conference, but said that he profoundly hoped the meeting and discussions of the Fall would settle those problems arising from misunderstandings between East and West.

Japan for Disarmament, Says Under Secretary

Tokio, July 18.—Japan will put no obstacles in the way of world disarmament, according to Under Foreign Secretary Hanihara.

"Japan wants disarmament as much as America or Great Britain," declared this official today. "The people of the Japanese empire are backing this movement and they have high hopes of accomplishing something definite. Our participation is already assured."

Questioned concerning the Japanese attitude on Far East problems, Mr. Hanihara would not talk.

The foreign office official was not so reticent regarding world disarmament. Continuing his remarks on this subject, he said:

"For a long time Viscount Uchida (the present foreign secretary) and Viscount Kato have been indicating their willingness for a conference such as President Harding suggested."

There is a current of opinion in official circles that the conference will not take up the Shantung question. At the same time, it is declared, that even if this issue is brought up it is unlikely that a satisfactory agreement could be reached.

DU PONTS CONSIDER MUSCLE SHOALS BID

Washington, July 19.—The government is considering a number of tentative propositions for the purchase of the nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala., in addition to the offer of Henry Ford, Secretary of Commerce Hoover has announced.

Among those mentioned are the Du Pont Powder Company and a number of large chemical industries. So far, Mr. Hoover intimated, the Ford offer is the only specific one received yet.

GIRL WHO LURED MAN FOR ROBBER IS SENTENCED

New York, July 19.—Catherine Zobestein, seventeen, who acted as a lure for men whom Michael Jegle robbed, yesterday was committed by Judge Talley to General Sessions to Bedford Reformatory. She pleaded guilty. Jegle, twenty-six, was sentenced to 5 to 10 years in prison for from five to ten years. Jegle held up a salesman in a hallway at Fifty-ninth street and Tenth avenue, where the victim had been lured by the girl.

The cup, which is of solid silver and stands 23¾ inches high, will be presented to the Mayor by Thomas H. Billodeau, chairman of the Boston Clean-Up Committee.

ARMED GUARDS ON DUTY IN MILL STRIKE

International Paper Company Preparing to Fight Walkout to Limit

Berlin, N. H., July 19.—Serious developments are expected on the arrival of attorneys for the International Paper Company's mills, who, it is declared, have been instructed to commence action against strikers for damage to the company's property.

The situation, already tense, has been further inflamed by the announcement that a large number of strikebreakers are on hand, as well as the fact that six armed guards have been placed on duty at North Walpole.

This latter action followed the refusal of North Walpole citizens, at a special town meeting, to furnish six special deputies for the protection of the paper company's property in that town.

The company's lawyers, it is said, intend to demand the prosecution of strikers who participated in riots a week or more ago, in which one man was wounded and a large number of shot fired. It was during this rioting also, according to company officials, that mill property was damaged by strikers.

At the North Walpole town meeting, when the request for deputies was refused, officials of the Champlain Realty Company appeared, and declared that the International Paper Company did not own a log of wood now in the river. They added that strikebreakers were not being sent here, and if the strikers wished they would float the logs down river. Union officials declared today, however, that strikebreakers are on the way from Charlestown, N. H.

In addition to the other troubles, it was learned that threats to use dynamite have been made against clergymen in Berlin if they express opinions about the strike. One communication received by Rev. T. J. Whalen, pastor of St. Theresa's Church, read:

"If you talk to your people on the labor situation we want you to know that there is plenty of dynamite in Berlin to blow you and all the priests to ——, and we know how to use it."

STILLMAN CASE ADJOURNMENT REQUESTED

Wife's Chief Counsel Ill, Seeks Postponement Until October

New York, July 19.—Adjournment of the Stillman divorce trial is asked in a letter from William F. Bleakley, law partner of John F. Brennan, chief counsel for Mrs. Anne T. Stillman, to the attorneys for James A. Stillman. Referee Daniel J. Gleason and John E. Mack, guardian for Baby Guy.

The request is based on the illness of Mr. Brennan who is suffering from an attack of pneumonia. Mr. Bleakley asks that the trial, which was to have been resumed next Monday in Poughkeepsie, be postponed until October, when, he says, he feels sure Mr. Brennan will have recovered his health.

Physicians have reported Mr. Brennan's condition as favorable, but point out that the crisis of the disease will not come until Friday.

The charges involving Mrs. Stillman and Guy are so closely interwoven that it is believed inadvisable to have Mr. Mack proceed with his side of the suit, as has been suggested.

It has been understood that Mr. Mack has but three witnesses more to call and that he intended then to ask for a verdict in favor of his client.

HELD IN $1,000 BAIL FOR SILK HOSE THEFT

Hearing in the case of Max Feldberg, twenty-four years old, of No. 187 Shurtleff street, Charlestown, has been continued until July 29. He was held in $1,000 bail. Feldberg was arraigned in the Municipal Court charged with receiving stolen goods on July 15. It is alleged that he received sixty dozen pairs of silk hose valued at $1,440, the property of the American Railway Express Company, that was stolen from a car in the Boston & Albany railroad yards in Allston.

'JAYWALKING' BY WOMEN BANE OF POLICE

More Impatient Than Men When Held Up at Crossings, Says Traffic Officer

Women are more impatient about waiting their turn to cross a street than men, according to Traffic Officer Harry Sweet, who handles the crowds daily at Winter and Tremont streets.

This officer, besieged with all sorts of questions while directing traffic, tries to tell women not to be "jaywalkers," but they grow impatient at being kept waiting a few minutes for a chance to cross the street.

NEED PATIENCE.

"Yes," says need patience and must swallow your feelings when you find that you cannot keep some women from looking and allow the automobiles and other conveyances their rights," he remarked.

"When I give the warning to stand back on the sidewalk, some women just walk ahead and then stop suddenly when they see the danger of their action and then when they walk back to the sidewalk they give you such a glance, enough to take your head off.

"Then a woman cannot talk, she can give you one of those searching glances. I've got a few of them right here when trying to direct this traffic.

IS QUESTION BOX.

"I find men more willing to stand back and wait, but some women just rush ahead when I have to tell them to go back, and this they never take. I tell you it takes all the gimp out of any man to stand here and just try to keep things run smoothly and be asked a hundred questions a day."

PICKPOCKETS CARRIED CONVENTION NOTICES

Providence, R. I., July 19.—Three Boston men were fined $25 and costs each here following their arrest on pickpockets. One of the men had clippings of advance notices of several large gatherings. They are therefore are confident the men did not leave the prison enclosure. An official statement issued by the prison at Puerto Rico says eight of the convicts were shot, but this does not take into account a considerable number reported to be severely injured.

A dozen prisoners and guards were seriously wounded in the three-hour battle during the rioting, and two more received lesser injuries.

Two versions of the cause of the trouble are current. One is that some prisoners were denied face powder and rouge, and that the ration of the men was limited and cigarettes barred. The other version is that the prisoners objected to being locked in cells three times a day.

Prison authorities have confirmed neither version.

FEAR MISSING MAN PERISHED IN STORM

Sedmont Point, Me., July 19.—The issue of who have been searching for Burton G. Loomis of Scituate, Mass., with disappearance after hearing Poverty Island to row to the mainland last Saturday afternoon have found no trace of the missing man and no fear of death.

The belief is growing that the boat overturned in the storm or else was driven out into the open sea.

TEN MISSING AFTER RIOTS IN PRISON

Property Loss at Pittsburgh Institution Is Placed at $750,000

Pittsburgh, July 19.—Ten convicts were missing today at the Western Penitentiary following the riot of over 1,000 prisoners Monday afternoon and the destruction of several prison buildings by fire entailing an estimated loss of $750,000, one prisoner was burned to death.

The ten missing convicts are believed to be hiding about some of the wrecked buildings, or elsewhere around the institution. Prison authorities are confident the men did not leave the prison enclosure. An official statement issued by the prison at Puerto Rico says eight of the convicts were shot, but this does not take into account a considerable number reported to be severely injured.

Another hot wave threatens Boston and vicinity, according to the forecast of the weather bureau.

Forecaster Smith issued a warning that the thermometer gave indication today of climbing to the ninety point before nightfall, with the humidity ranging above 72 per cent.

Hope is held out for tomorrow, however, for there is promise that the wind will swing round to the southwest and northwest, easing the air of its burden of moisture.

Boston was by far the hottest spot in all New England today with the mercury at 8 o'clock hovering about 78 degrees and going up. Cloudiness was general all over the Atlantic coast.

NEW ATTEMPT TO RAISE ESPERANTO ASSURED

Gloucester, July 19.—The return of the steamship Fabia to Noble Island to attempt again the raising of the racing schooner Esperanto was assured today when a subscription was started to finance the second expedition. Following a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce, when the first pledge was made by A. B. Badger, head of the salvage concern which made the first attempt, collections were begun and it is believed the Fabia will be under way Friday.

4 Stitches Taken in Beating Heart of Brooklyn Youth

New York, July 19.—Four stitches were taken in the beating heart of Frank Farino, six-teen-year-old Brooklyn boy, who had stabbed himself with a stiletto.

Two hours after the operation, which was performed through an opening sawed between two ribs, Frank asked permission to sit up, and doctors at the Holy Family Hospital are hopeful for his recovery. The operation required thirty-five minutes.

M. Downer and Dr. George Doyle, both of Brooklyn, performed the operation, the first of its kind, and the only one which they say, could save Farino's life.

WRIT TO COMPEL APPROVAL OF FEE DENIED

Petition of Attorney Forrest Continued to Permit Agreement on Sum

Judge De Courcy of the Supreme Court today heard a petition of Samuel W. Forrest of Arlington for a writ of mandamus to compel Judge Charles J. Brown of the Municipal Court of East Boston to approve a bill of $1,000 for services and $275 for expenses incurred, in the case of Robert W. Benfrew, who on June 28 in the Newton Police Court was adjudged insane by Judge Brown and committed to the Westboro State Hospital.

Judge De Courcy ruled that a mandamus would not lie. He said that Judge Brown might well hesitate to allow the amount claimed by Mr. Forrest on a petition brought by himself. Judge De Courcy suggested that it might be possible to arrange for the payment of a reasonable sum which would meet with the approval of Judge Brown, and for this purpose the case was continued.

PUBLIC LIBRARY BIG AID IN SONG TEST

"Dictionary Corner" Sought by Those Puzzled Over Those Fascinating Titles

Participants in the Boston American's $6,600 Songs of the World Title Test will find on this page Test Picture No. 35 and a List of Titles which contains the correct title. A new List of Titles will be printed tomorrow.

Those who are taking part in the Test may write titles in ink or with pencil. They may, if they prefer, use the typewriter. Or, titles may be clipped from the List of Titles and pasted on. Titles may be sent in book form, the pictures pasted into an inexpensive notebook and titles and other information written below them.

More than one participant in the Test has asked the Test Editor which of the big dictionaries is the best to "buy" for the purposes of the Test. The Test Editor's advice is not to buy any. When, along towards the end of the previous Test, he was obliged to investigate the authorities for Mr. Artist's use of titles, the Test Editor found everything he needed in "dictionary corner" at the Public Library. Later, he learned that this was the method of some of the leaders in the Movie Play Title Test.

An unabridged dictionary is a good thing to own but ownership is not necessary. Visit your own library, the library of the people, and help yourself.

Which is not saying that the present Test will be decided by dictionaries alone. The dictionary will help, but—

How are you getting along?

Tomorrow, Picture No. 36 and a new List of Titles.

HARDING CANCELLS CABINET MEETING

"If Lloyd George supports the views of Sir James Craig," observed the Standard, "then the negotiations die a natural death."

The Morning Post, organ of the Tory Conservatives, treated the situation somewhat ironically, saying:

"One of our conquerors," referring to De Valera's demand for self-determination for Ireland, "does not request, or negotiate—he demands in the name of the Irish nation."

TO "IGNORE LOYALISTS."

The Post notes the fact that Lloyd George himself described De Valera as "The chieftain of a vast majority of the Irish race and himself the President of the Irish Republic."

"If the Loyalists of the North refuse to join the rebels of the South," continues the Post, "then Lloyd George will ignore the Loyalists and treat with the Irish chieftain—born, by the way, in New York—as if he represented the Ulster Loyalists also.

"It will be interesting if Lloyd George tries to terrorize the Ulster government into surrender.

"Sir James Craig has gone back, leaving the British to settle their own terms with the south, insisting only on the most absolute way the right of the people of the North to determine their own fate."

LONDON HEARS REVOLT IN UKRAINE IS CRUSHED

London, July 19.—The revolt of the peasants in Ukrainia has been crushed, according to a Central news dispatch from Moscow today. A Riga dispatch quotes M. Zinovief, one of the leading Communist chiefs in Russia, as telling the Third International:

"The Russian Communists must prepare for attacks from all sides."

Advices from Helsingfors on Monday quoted travelers from Russia as saying that Russia was mobilizing in the anticipation of further warfare.

"I have tried my best to work but cannot make a go of it," says Hedlund. "The doctors say I am in no condition to try to work. Yet the War Risk Bureau says I am not entitled to compensation nor deserving of hospital care. All right, let it go at that."

Two weeks at the Chatham home have been arranged for Hedlund if he leaves the hospital. Then he must shift for himself. The fact that his wife is going back to work in the watch factory when it starts up after the Summer vacation does not add to his peace of mind.

No Trouble to Keep Skin Free From Hairs

(The Modern Beauty)

There is no need for any woman to countenance superfluous hairs, because with a paste made by mixing some powdered delatone with water it is easy to get rid of them. The paste is applied for 2 to 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This treatment will rid the skin of hair without leaving a blemish, but care should be taken to see that you get real delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.—Advertisement.

ICE CREAM PRICE REDUCTIONS REPORTED

Boston American Crusade Has Statewide Effects; Fall River Cuts Costs

Dealers here and elsewhere throughout New England are beginning to feel the pinch of public opinion created by the Boston American campaign for lower prices on ice cream and sodas.

Fall River dealers are reported to be falling in line with the movement for reducing the cost of these Summer necessaries, and are selling two cones for six cents and sodas for 11 cents.

TREMONT STREET REDUCTION.

The Boston dealers have been a little slower in coming around, but the signs today are that they also will see the light before long.

One Tremont street pharmacy announces cuts in the price of sodas and cones. The sodas will cost 11 cents, one of which goes as tax. Cones also are reduced.

In many instances the price of cones has been dropped to the old price of five cents each and sodas to ten cents, pre-war charges.

The publication of figures showing the enormous profits made by the dealers, as issued by the Commission on the Necessaries of Life, already is showing results.

TOO P. C. PROFIT ON CONES.

This action followed the refusal of the dealers to pay any attention to the demand of the commissioners for a cut in prices.

Bernard Scanlon, secretary of the commission, announced that an investigation has shown that the dealers in ice cream are making in many instances as much as 700 and 800 per cent. on their original outlay. They also selling for ten cents, cones that cost them on and one-half cents, and ice cream that is sold in most places for twenty cents, actually costs the dealer four cents.

The income for a gallon of ice cream for cones, which costs $1.60, is more than $8.

Drop in Ice Cream Prices in Worcester

Worcester, July 19.—Another drop in ice cream prices is reported here, one retail ice cream dealer having set the price of college ices and ice cream sodas at 10 cents each. Ice cream in bulk is sold for 60 cents a quart instead of 70 cents. A druggist also has dropped his ice cream cone price to 5 cents. He says that business fell off at the old price and is picking up with the new.

Springfield to Have Protest Parade

Springfield, July 19.—Newsies of Springfield will march Thursday noon in a big parade demanding five cent ice cream cones and ten cent sodas.

Plans for the procession were outlined at a meeting held last night in the Newsboy's Club. More than fifty of the boys were present, and approved the idea of a protest procession.

Every boy promised to round up scores of friends and patrons to join the line of march, and it is believed that hundreds of men and boys and girls will be in line.

Placards and banners with slogans to impress the general public and the dealers that "Young America" means business will be shown.

The action of the newsies was taken following the publication of a statement by Mayor Edwin F. Leonard, declaring that after an investigation, he was convinced that the dealers could not reduce prices at the present time. Ice cream cones and sodas are luxuries he said, and should be regarded as such. He suggested a strike of consumers to force the price down, if the public really believes it too high.

MISS ISABEL BOARDMAN

Miss Boardman, who is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Boardman, of No. 636 Beacon street, is one of the most active and popular members of Boston's younger set. She is spending the Summer on the North Shore.

By BETTY ALDEN.

Although Newport's very fashionable coterie hails largely from the Island of Manhattan, still, I note that Boston is well represented in the round of festivities at Rhode Island's famous watering place. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw 2nd and Mrs. Alfred Coleman of Boston were among the guests entertained at dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilson to celebrate Mrs. Wilson's birthday. The dinner, which was given at Indian House, was followed by music and informal dancing. The list of guests and there were three tables for them, included a no less distinguished personage than Mrs. "Ollie" Belmont, as well as Mrs. Charles De L. Oelrichs, whose comings and goings are of never-diminishing interest to the public at large. Which recalls the "no bonnet" dance given the other evening at the Clambake Club. Some generously inclined person arranged a dance, had his or her prospective guests called by telephone fairly late in the evening to come down to the club for an informal dance, and in just a few minutes' time the ball room in the clubhouse presented a scene of life and gayety. Which shows that the little irksome god of Formality and Conventionality is not always adhered to.

The various resorts nestled among the slopes of the White Mountains are daily calling prominent Bostonians from the Hub. Mrs. William G. Sharp is at the Mount Pleasant House. Mr. Henry W. Lamb of Brookline is the guest of Mr. George H. Shriver at Bretton Woods. The golf links at the latter place are proving as attractive as usual to the devotees of the little white ball.

Mr. Francis A. Shea of No. 222 Commonwealth avenue, who is at Pinard cottage No. 5, is registered at the Casino in Newport for the season. Mr. Shea has holdings in the Algonquin Country, Atlantic and Automobile Clubs of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Ingersoll Bowditch of Jamaica Plain are settled for the season at their Summer cottage in Chocorua, in the White Mountains. Mrs. Charles Bowditch, whose husband died recently, has arrived at Chocorua with her daughter, Cornelia. Their Winter home is on Moss Hill road, Jamaica Plain.

I hear that Mr. and Mrs. Francis Wilson Lee of No. 308 Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, have left their home, where they have been staying, for some time, and are now bound for Boston.

Mrs. Winthrop Murray Crane, who is well-known here socially, has invited the public in the Berkshires during July and August to visit the gardens at "Sugar Hill," her estate in Dalton, Mass.

A wedding of interest to Bostonians was that of Miss Anna Mead and Mr. Kellogg Franklin of New York, son of Professor Franklin of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which took place Sunday at Lake Waramaug, Ct., the Summer home of the bride's parents. Young Mrs. Franklin, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson R. Mead of Greenwich, Ct., is a graduate of Smith College, and was attended by six of her classmates. Miss Elisabeth Mead was maid of honor and Mr. Curtis Franklin of New York was best man for his brother.

NEWSY GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, July 19. — The President and Mrs. Harding returned from a week-end cruise on the Mayflower. They were accompanied by Attorney-General Daugherty, General Pershing, Charles G. Dawes, Colonel Forbes, senator and Mrs. New, Senator Edge and Brigadier-General Sawyer.

General Pitro Badoglio, former chief of staff of the Italian armies, was the guest of honor at a dinner given at the Italian embassy by Colonel Bernezzo, the military attache.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace returned from Raritan, where he was a guest of Senator and Mrs. Frelinghuysen.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon returned from Hot Springs, where he passed the week-end with his daughter, Miss Alice Mellon.

J. De Lagerberg, secretary of the Swedish legation, with Mme. De Lagerberg, is visiting at Southampton, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond have gone to Lenox, Mass.

Captain E. A. Varona y Del Castillo, newly-appointed military attache of the Cuban legation, has arrived in New York.

Manuel Zavala, secretary of the Nicaraguan legation, is in New York for several days.

CLAIMS HIS WIFE HAS ANOTHER HUSBAND

Worcester, July 19.—Joseph C. Kittredge of Athol wants his marriage ceremony set aside and has started annulment proceedings in Superior Court. He claims the ceremony he went through with Bertha Quigley, nee of Orme, Me., at Hartford on January 1, 1921, should not stand as legal because his wife was previously married to James Edward Quigley and her husband was then living.

CONCEALED HUT HIDES STILL AT WESTFIELD

Westfield, July 19.—Accused of owning a still which was found in a camouflaged hut in the woods in the Springfield section, John Galeski and John Donbron were arrested by the police here. Parts of the still were found hidden in three places about the hut.

WOMAN TRIES SUICIDE WITH CORSET STRING

Worcester, July 18.—Annie Burke, thirty-four years old, of No. 19 Washington street, tried to end her life by choking herself with a corset string, which she wound tightly about her throat in police station. She was saved by Police Matron Mary Sullivan. The Burke woman was then handcuffed.

LAWRENCE MAN HELD IN $25,000 ON JURY CHARGE

John Cuddy, Jr., Pleads Not Guilty to Attempted Tampering

Salem, July 19.—John Cuddy, Jr., of Lawrence pleaded not guilty today to the charge of attempting to tamper with the jury hearing the case of George Cuddy of Lawrence in the Superior Court here. He was held in $25,000 bonds. Three other men pleaded guilty to the same charge and one pleaded not guilty.

The three who pleaded guilty are Frank C. McCollister of Haverhill, Fred D. Roberts of Lawrence and Samuel Jassky of Lawrence, Robert Dow of Lawrence pleaded not guilty.

The jury tampering charges grew out of the trial of George Cuddy of Lawrence some time ago. Cuddy was charged with conducting a lottery and offering a gratuity to a Watch and Ward representative. The case was on in the Superior Court here. Suddenly the proceedings were halted when the court was informed that certain persons were attempting to tamper with the jury.

Followed the arrest of McCollister, Then Roberts, and finally Cuddy. All were arrested, charged with attempting to tamper with the jury. John Cuddy, Jr., was named, the authorities declared, but his whereabouts were unknown to them for some time.

Today he appeared of his own will in the Superior Court. Robert Dow of Lawrence also put in his appearance.

DARE LEADS TO 80-FOOT LEAP AND HOSPITAL

Clinton, July 19.—John Welch, once noted as a distance runner, is at the Clinton Hospital recovering from injuries which he suffered when he leaped from a girder of the Massachusetts Central Railroad bridge into the Nashua river. He struck on his stomach, fractured some ribs and suffered internal hurts to his chest.

Some of the men who were with him said he made the leap on a $10 bet, others that he had said he would jump from the bridge and later, when he was pulled, declared "a Welch always made good any statement he made." Welch is about twenty-eight years old and has a wife and five children.

HAVERHILL ANNOYED BY BAD CAR SERVICE

Haverhill, July 19.—In an attempt to secure better car service from the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company, Mayor Parkman B. Flanders and the Municipal Council are to arrange a conference with Manager F. J. Donoghue for Thursday. Residents claim that the cars are not giving service that the stadium crowds are not accommodated and overcrowded by the road and that, in consequence the Haverhill semi-professional ball team composed of former major leaguers may leave the city.

TWO-STORY FALL FAILS TO HURT BABY BOY

Manchester, N. H., July 19.—After falling two stories to a gravel roof, Ernest C. Carey, Jr., two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Carey of Hotel Carlton, was picked up by his mother uninjured and within a short time was playing about the house as usual.

The boy has a persistent habit of climbing up to windows and was engaged in his favorite diversion today when he lost his balance and fell through a window screen to the roof.

MAN PINNED UNDER TRUCKLOAD OF ICE

Springfield, July 19.—Louis Fortier, forty-two years old, of West Springfield, sustained internal injuries by being pinned under a load of ice when a motor truck he was driving overturned. He was taken to the Springfield Hospital.

AGED MAN KILLED BY FALL FROM STAGING

Providence, July 19. — Marderose Sharigian, aged 65, of No. 30 Whipple street, was killed when he fell from a staging at the house at No. 42 Whipple street, on which he was making repairs. He fell 35 feet, crushing his chest and ribs.

POLICE CHIEF SUED FOR CHASE OF AUTO

Connecticut Woman Asks $25,000 Damages for Injuries Sustained Near Lee

Lee, July 19.—Mrs. Nellie C. Rose of Waterford, Conn., has brought action for $25,000 against Chief of Police Frank T. Coughlin in connection with the now famous dash over Jacobs Ladder early in June. A special attachment has been placed on the property of Chief Coughlin and his wife, Anna S. Coughlin.

The claims of Mrs. Rose are not as yet known, as her declaration will not be filed until August 1. Mrs. Rose was with her husband one night early in June when it is claimed the officer attempted to stop them.

During the chase Chief Coughlin is charged with shooting several times. Later the car was wrecked in a ditch and Mrs. Rose was at a hotel in Chester some days in a nervous condition. Three suits were filed, each for $25,000. All three were brought by Mr. Rose against the inhabitants of Lee, Selectman George Dana Knox speeding, and the Chief of Police. The suits now aggregate $100,000.

An attempt has been made to reopen the case of Mr. Rose in the Lee court, where he was found guilty on two counts, of passing the officer and speeding.

Assails Autoists Who 'Hug' Girls While at Car Wheel

New London, Ct., July 19.—Hugging is a pleasant pastime, says Chief Inspector McMurtry of the Motor Vehicle Department but it has got to stop in automobiles.

A startlingly large proportion of the accidents reported to the department are due, he declares, to the flirting that is carried on between autoists and their fair companions.

"A man needs both hands, and all his faculties to steer a car properly through traffic or even on a country road," says the chief. "He has no business using one arm to hug a girl at his side.

"Hereafter there is going to be a steady drive against men who drive automobiles with one hand, thus endangering passengers and the general public."

URGE DAUGHERTY TO MODIFY DRY LAW RULING

Clergy, Representing Many Denominations, Want Less Restriction on Sacramental Wines

Washington, July 19.—Attorney-General Daugherty will be asked to reconsider the opinion by which his predecessor outlawed wholesale liquor dealers. This became known today, after a formal appeal by representatives of the clergy was filed, asking for a review of the opinion and for one which relates to the distribution of sacramental wines.

The latter provides that the quota of wholesale liquor dealers, therefore, under the so-called "prescriptive rights" clause of the Volstead law, will be reopened.

The clergy representing many denominations, vigorously criticised the present regulations. Their earnest plea that they be less restricted in obtaining sacramental wines, in required quantities for different ceremonies won a promise today from prohibition heads for a material modification of the rules now in force.

BATTLE FLEET TO SAIL FOR PLYMOUTH

Several Dreadnoughts and Destroyers Will Participate in Celebration

Washington, July 19.—Several battleships and destroyers are to be ordered to Plymouth for the Pilgrim Tercentenary celebration as the result of a conference between Senator Lodge and the President.

JUNIOR IRISH COUNCIL ORGANIZED IN ARLINGTON

Under the auspices of the order of Knights of Columbus Junior Council, an American organization of the Republic of Ireland, has been organized in Arlington, with Thomas O'Keefe as president. The other officials are, Vice-president, Paul Clement Griffin; secretary, Paul J. McCullough, and treasurer, Joseph F. Higgins. There is already a large membership, and the young folks hope to double it at the next meeting.

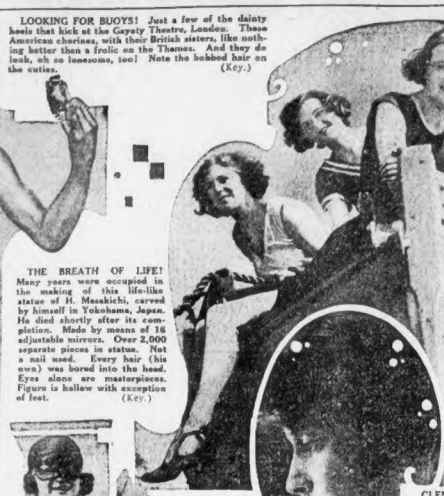
POLICE OF GERMANY KEEP CLOSE WATCH ON GIRLS' SKIRTS

LOOKING FOR BUOYS! Just a few of the dainty heels that kick at the Gayety Theatre, London. These American cherines, with their British sisters, like nothing better than a frolic on the Thames. And they do look, oh so lonesome, too! Note the bobbed hair on the cuties. (Key.)

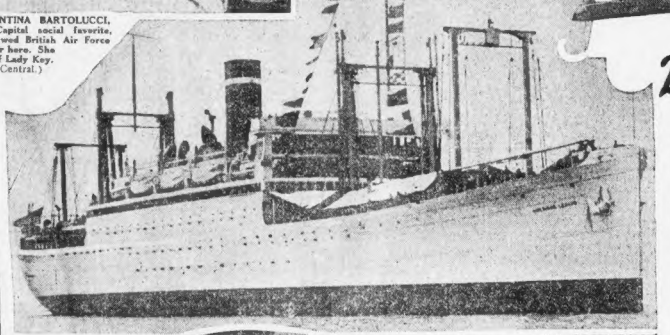


PEACHES ALL! Shannon Day, who flicks for the films, is very fond of this hat, a new style fashioned of peach blow (U. & U.)

SUSTAINED ACTION! It is needless to tell you that this photo is remarkable. It would seem as if the feet of these athletes were chained together Taken at Stamford Bridge, London, during two-mile hurdle race, won by G. R. Hodge, left. (W. W.)

THE BREATH OF LIFE! Many years were occupied in the making of this life-like statue of H. Masakichi, carved by himself in Yokohama, Japan. He died shortly after its completion. Made by means of 16 adjustable mirrors. Over 2,000 separate pieces in statue. Not a nail used. Every hair (his own) was bored into the head. Eyes alone are masterpieces. Figure is hollow with exception of feet. (Key.)

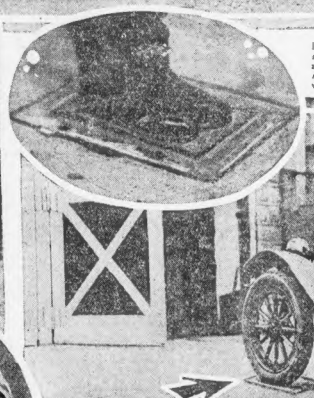
CLEMENTINA BARTOLUCCI, former Capital social favorite, who will wed British Air Force flier, a war hero. She is niece of Lady Key. (Central.)



Dog Days

HIGH, BUT NOT DIZZY! "Mianahaha," the masked marvel, is America's latest lady daredevil. After swinging about on the edge of this New York hotel roof, twenty-five stories from the street, she shimmied a bit on the cornice. Gosh, if it were us, we'd shake from fear! (U. & U.)

WINNIFRED STRANGMAN, daughter of Sir Thomas Strangman, who is now buying trousseau for marriage to Robert Lorraine, hero flier in the war. He is one of the most popular actors in England. (Key.)



HEROIC SYMBOL! The S. S. American Legion, named in honor of our valorous soldiers, has put into Hoboken, N. J., to make ready for her real test, a trip to South America. The big craft burns oil and is valued at $5,000,000. (Int.)

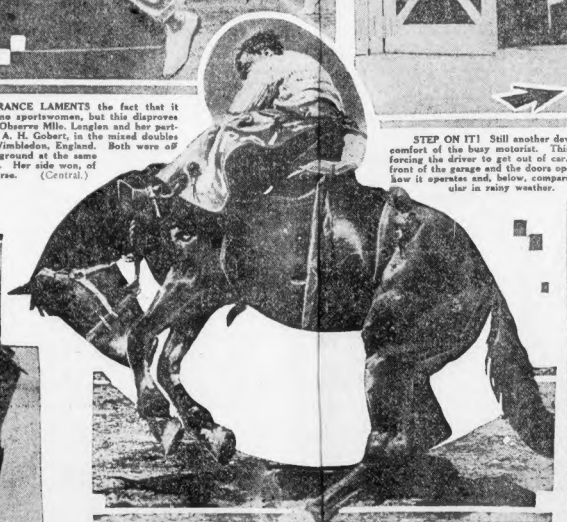
A MILKING SIR, SHE SAID! This young lady can milk a cow faster than you can drink it. She won the prize at the Derby (England) holiday show. The King was there 'neverything. So, boss, so. (U. & U.)

FRANCE LAMENTS the fact that it has no sportswomen, but this disproves it. Observe Mlle. Langlen and her partner, A. H. Gobert, in the mixed doubles at Wimbledon, England. Both were off the ground at the same time. Her side won, of course. (Central.)

STEP ON IT! Still another device has been added to the list for the comfort of the busy motorist. This one opens the garage door without forcing the driver to get out of car. Just run the wheel over a plate in front of the garage and the doors open automatically. Upper photo shows how it operates and, below, comparative size of plate. Bound to be popular in rainy weather. (Int.)

HOT DOG. Yessir, it's a fact, folks, I'm some warm pup with all these dog days. It keeps me busy trying to keep track of the shimmying thermometer. (Key.)

COMING DOWN! If the H. C. L. won't come down in Berlin, dunder und blitzen, the skirts will. Here are two German policemen taking the girls' measure, as it were, to see if their skirts are above regulation length. they prove to be too short for careless eyes, the policeman, called Sipos, take the girls' addresses and their parents are notified. (Int.)



BUCK AND BE DURNED! That's what "Buff" Brady said when this big horse tried to throw him at the bucking horse contest, Burbank, Cal. "Buff" won the championship and $1,000. He is just as clever with the lariat. Photo shows him near the end of the contest when another horse and rider were ready to call it "quits." The animal nearly shook him off once but the rider clung on and the horse then lost courage. (Key.)

OH, WHAT A DROP! "It was the most terrible experience of my life," said Miss Phoebe Fairgrave, 18-year-old St. Paul girl, after her 15,000-foot plunge from an airplane attached to a parachute. V. C. Omlie, her pilot, shown beside her. (W. W.)

WHAT A NERVE! These girls say they are the bravest in N. Y. The most perfect physically will be placed in "black hole" on convict ship for 24 hours.

O-O—H, BURGLARS! Mrs. Sidney Drew, who narrowly escaped a visit from a second story worker, according to N. Y. police.

CONSTABULARY JOIN IN AUTO CRUSADE

New State Police Ordered to Rid Roads of Drunks on First Tour of Duty

Impressed by the serious loss of life caused by auto accidents, State Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred F. Foote today issued orders for the members of the new State Constabulary to join in the crusade to rid the highways of reckless and drunken drivers.

The orders were the most important given to the new constabulary men as they left for Plymouth on their first assignment of duty.

Colonel Foote told them to halt and arrest every driver whose recklessness endangers life or property and to haul them into court for trial.

"The principal thing," he said, "is to get rid of the drunken autoist."

The fifteen constabulary men are equipped with fast motor cars. Eventually fifty men will patrol the roads. Before they left for duty, Captain George A. Parker, commander of the new outfit, conferred with State Registrar Frank A. Goodwin on the program for crusading against the dangerous drivers.

When the fifty are enlisted Goodwin will outline the campaign to the entire group. Goodwin, himself, has requisitioned ten additional inspectors who will soon be policing the roads on motorcycles.

Registrar Goodwin today revoked and suspended the following:

RUSSIANS MAKE FIERCE ATACKS NEAR ZANGEZUR

London, July 19—A Reuter dispatch received here today states that the British minister at Tehran announces that a large Russian force is making fierce attacks in the region of Zangezur, devastating villages and leveling thousands of victims. The British consul at Tabriz announces that the Bolshevists have defeated the Armenians.

SEATS FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN ON COMMON

Special benches for women and children have been installed in the Boston Common, by order of the city fathers, and the police have been instructed to see that men are shooed away from these seats. Mayor Peters is trying to find money enough to construct seats around the new baseball diamonds.

Impulse to Steal Laid to Defective Thyroid Gland

New York, July 19.—Winsome Edna Willsey's wickedness may be in her thyroid gland instead of in her heart, and by proper treatment of the gland her thievish fingers may be taught never to steal again.

When the girl was brought before the court for sentence she found a champion in the very man from whom she had stolen.

Dr. Hyman, superintendent of the hospital where Edna had worked as a nurse, and from which she had stolen some clothing, said:

Since Miss Willsey's arrest I have examined her. I found a malfunction of the thyroid gland. This condition often causes laxness in morals. I have no doubt that she is a very nice girl and that the gland is responsible for impulses she cannot control. I have withdrawn my intention to insist on prosecution, and I am certain if she gets proper treatment she will be a perfectly normal girl."

The judge postponed sentence until August 15.

Brockton Men Show Receipts for Payments—$10,000 Involved

Brockton, July 19.—Brockton men are good sports, but when they pay a dollar or two a week and receive the assurance that when a certain amount has been paid they will receive a suit "with a punch," and then fail to locate the agent, they object.

This is the condition that exists among some 350 or 400 Brocktonians who are dolefully showing each other receipt books with credited payments of from $10 to $45. The total involved in this matter is from $10,000 to $15,000.

Several weeks ago a man came to Brockton and registered at a local hotel as "S. B. Taylor." The police rather that numerous Brocktonians were visited and solicited to open an account and that hundreds "fell" for it. Each time the "agent" was seen he was urging a few more to join, declaring that he had nearly enough. He came weekly for quite a period and then was seen no more.

Inspector C. W. Grose was then called into the matter. He communicated with the Boston police and learned that the latter, together with police officials of other cities, were interested in the fate of the Leonard Tailoring Company of Boston, said to be closed for business.

CLERGYMEN SEEK NEW WINE REGULATIONS

Washington, July 19.—Issuance of permits to wholesalers to sell wine for sacramental purposes was asked of internal revenue commissioner Blair by a group of clergymen and rabbis today. Under a ruling by former Attorney-General Palmer, wholesalers are prohibited from making direct sales. Edmund F. Maher, attorney for the Catholic and Episcopal clergy, and Milton Strassburger for the rabbis, were directed to submit briefs relating to proposed regulations governing the use and distribution of wines for sacramental purposes.

ABANDONED BABE FOUND; GIRL LEFT SUICIDE NOTE

Fall River, July 19.—Following the disappearance of a seventeen-year-old girl and her baby from the Wayward Girls' Home of New Bedford, and receipt of a note from the girl by the home authorities in which she expressed suicide intentions, an abandoned baby was found on the steps of the home of John B. Richard, No. 374 June street, this city. The police couple the abandonment of the child with the missing mother and search has been instituted for her.

"TODDLE TOP" CASE COMES UP SATURDAY

Hearing in the case of John W. McCarthy of Lamartine street, Charlestown, who was arraigned in the Charlestown Court charged with gaming with a "toddle top" on the Lord's Day, has been continued until Saturday. According to Patrolman John Lynch, McCarthy was arrested while in company with a group of young men in a vacant house at Foster court, Charlestown.

SIXTY JOURNEYMEN PLUMBERS ON STRIKE

More than sixty journeymen plumbers from Medford, Malden, Everett, Melrose, Wakefield and Reading went on strike for a dollar an hour instead of ninety cents an hour, the pay they have been receiving. The men tried to obtain their demands by arbitration with their employers, but only a small fraction of the employers yielded.

LAWRENCE GIRL KILLED BY AUTO

Lawrence, July 19.—Pearl Tracy, eight years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Tracy of No. 149 South Broadway, this city, is dead at the Lawrence General Hospital and her brother, Donald, aged five, is suffering from contusions of the head as the result of being struck by an automobile operated, according to the police, by Alexander A. McDowell, of Forest street, Methuen.

ATLANTIC CITY PLANS DRIVE ON CROOKS

Hotel Men Back Move to Rid Resort of Undesirable Residents

Atlantic City, July 19.—Gamblers, crooks, liquor sellers and other undesirables are to receive a knockout in this popular Summer resort.

Backed by the hotel men, the most powerful interests in the resort, a squad of more than a dozen detectives from the Burns Agency are working here in the preliminary steps toward the ousting of the undesirables from the city. Every crook and undesirable now here is being listed by the detectives and a general departure of these gentry is expected in the very near future.

That Mayor Edward T. Bader is in favor of the movement to purge the resort of undesirables is taken from the fact that he has discharged John H. Doey, former Philadelphia detective, who has been working as a special detective. No explanation for his action was given by the Mayor.

Charles H. Dennis, Philadelphia manager of the Burns Agency, in authority for the statement that County Prosecutor Gassill is working with the hotel men to clean up the resort.

Dennis declares, "At present we are simply listing the crooks, but later if they continue to hang around they will be taken in hand through the prosecuting office."

Since the word has passed round that the hotel men are really out to get the crooks there has been a decided falling off in the making of handbooks on horse races and other activities on the part cappers and steerers for crap and poker games, especially in the sections of the resort away from the boardwalk.

REMITS SENTENCE ON DESERTION CHARGES

William Henry Nolan, a Somerville broker, who was sentenced to one year at hard labor for alleged desertion by a court-martial on May 3, will not have to serve his sentence.

Today General Clarence R. Edwards remitted the sentence in consideration of Nolan's service for three years in the navy. The finding of guilty for desertion was revoked, and he was found guilty of "absence without leave."

5-YEAR-OLD GIRL GOING ON HUNT IN AFRICA

Chicago, July 19.—Alice Bradley, five years old, is making preparations to go to Africa on a gorilla hunt. She is probably the youngest American girl ever to go on such an expedition. She will ride on a porter's back when they cross the swamps and climb the mountain steeps. Lytle Alice will accompany her mother, Mrs. Mary Hastings Bradley, well-known author, who will hunt material for a book.

KIDNAPED TORRENS CHILD FOUND AT LONG BRANCH

Long Branch, N. J., July 19.—Margaret Eloise Torrens, ten-month-old baby, who was taken by her father from her mother's home at Pompton Lake, on July 7, was discovered here. Alfred J. Torrens, the father, who had the child here, has been detained by the police. Baby Margaret was given in charge of the local Women's Welfare Service.

MAINE SHERIFF GETS 214 QUARTS OF WHISKEY

Houlton, Me., July 19.—Sheriff Edward Grant, assisted by Deputies James Ross and James Jackins, seized 214 quarts of Canadian whiskey which was en route from Vanburen to Bangor. The automobile used to carry the liquor was operated by W. C. Maynard of Bangor, according to the officers, and was seized together with the liquor.

BEVERLY OBJECTS TO NEW HIGH SCHOOL SITE

Residents of Beverly, under the leadership of Horace Woodbury, held a public meeting to protest the erection of the new Beverly High School on Sohier road, Beverly. The citizens desire to centralize their schools, contending that Sohier road is too far distant from the city proper for the children to reach.

The new High School will cost the city $750,000.

WOMAN VAINLY TRIES TO CAPTURE ROBBER

Seizing a man whom she found rifling her pocketbook, Mrs. Elsie Redenbaker, No. 24 Mystic avenue, Somerville, followed him to the street when he broke away, and leaped on the running-board of an automobile into which he jumped. Despite her struggles, the robber threw her to the street and escaped.

St. Louis, July 19.—Henry Schroeder, fifty years old, took poison here and died in a cemetery. His body was found lying near a tombstone bearing his own name.

$15,005 Applications for Patents in First Half of Year

Washington, July 19.—The American inventive mind was busy during the first six months of this year, no fewer than 45,005 applications for patents having been filed during that period, an increase of 42½ per cent. over the number for the first half of 1918, the patent office announced today. At the same time 8,369 applications for trade marks were filed.

In spite of the industrial depression the amount of business presented to every branch of the patent office has increased by leaps and bounds since 1915, the demands upon the office being beyond any previous figures in its history, with no recession in sight, officials said.

NIGHT SERVICE CUT IN BOYLSTON ST. TUBE

General Manager Edward Dana of the Elevated makes the following announcement relative to the temporary diversion of the boylston street subway cars:

Commencing last night at 8.30 p. m. and continuing each night except Saturday and Sunday nights, all Boylston street subway cars will run on the surface from Kenmore street, via Beacon and Boylston streets, both ways. This temporary diversion is necessary because of work at the new Arlington street subway.

COUNSEL ASSIGNED TO NEGRO HELD FOR MURDER

Pittsfield, July 19.—Attorney Robert M. Stevens of this city has been appointed by the court to defend Clarence H. Williams of Stockbridge, negro, charged in the Superior Court with first degree murder in connection with the death of Louis C. Decker at Stockbridge on June 5. When Williams appeared in court to enter a plea of not guilty he stated he had no money for defence.

ONTARIO NOW OFFICIALLY A SAHARA

Canadians Use Eleventh Hour for Rushing Home Beer and Hard Stuff

Windsor, Ont., July 19.—At 12:01 o'clock this morning Ontario officially joined the "dry" column. At that hour the prohibition law, which forbids importation and transportation of spirituous and intoxicating beverages containing 2½ per cent. or more alcoholic content into or within the province, became effective.

Taking advantage of the several weeks' grace between the election which made the dry bill a law and its actual going into effect, canny Canadians have been stocking up with quantities of beer and distilled spirits, limited only by the size of their bank accounts. These operations continued until the last minute of midnight, men, women and children transporting their "treasure" through the streets in handcarts, flivvers and other vehicles.

There were no obsequies of any consequence held in memory of John Barleycorn in the province.

WOMEN IN DEMAND AS TOBACCO WORKERS

Westfield, July 19.—Mere man is in a fair way to be ousted from another trade by the more nimble fingered sex. Demand for women workers to handle cultivated tobacco is on the steady increase, according to employers here, who say that they are superior to men for the work. Men are getting $2.50 a day while women are paid $2.25.

CARDS IN LAST STAND AGAINST BRAVES AT WIGWAM TODAY

By NICK FLATLEY

One more victory from the Cardinals this afternoon and the Battling Braves will be all ready to receive the Pittsburgh Pirates on the morrow. That triumph was in the offing, for in the three games the teams have played to date the natives have displayed marked superiority in all branches of the well-known pastime.

The one game the Cards did make good to snatch Saturday was a gift, pure and simple, and incidentally the only one lost thus far on the home stand.

* * *

These Pirates are flying storm signals over in New York, and certainly cannot be overjoyed at the prospect of visiting Braves Field. Matter of fact, none but the Braves have enjoyed that orchard since the first month of the season.

* * *

After both last Brave defeats, there was a bit of quarreling among the athletes, showing that they don't wish to win much harder than the Irish want freedom. That kind of spirit is hard to beat.

* * *

It was John Watson's turn to pitch, unless Manager Mitchell decided to send Scott back. Large John didn't get going yesterday, and was anxious for a chance to redeem the pounding. Big Jeff Pfeffer, the most dependable of the Card sharpshooters, was scheduled to fling for the enemy.

Watson, as you may remember, teased the best game of his young life against the Cubs the other day.

The Cardinals challenged the Braves to a slugging match, the Braves accepted and each lashed the Cards, 14 to 8, in nine rounds. Thus the third game of that series was satisfactorily concluded and the Mitchmen gained a full game on the Pirates, who were being toppled by the Giants. The attic is now only six games ahead of the Braves' quarters.

That fray was just like a scrap where a couple of clever boxers throw caution to the winds and start to wallop one another, toe to toe. Runs and hits were sprinkled about more frequently than blueberries in the pie that is always in season since they learned how to can 'em.

* * *

Somebody must have tossed in a ton of lively baseballs. There was no airtight pitching, as we say, and there was a lot of mighty slamming. McHenry and Hornsby unbelted homers, Ford and Lavan triples. In all twenty-nine bats were rung up, the Braves registering sixteen of them.

* * *

The Cardinals got themselves into bother by knocking John Scott off the peak in the first, while gathering three runs. That inning made the Braves mad. They hopped a Mister Walker in their first and got a couple before he vanished.

Then they introduced a real inning, the fourth. Before the baseballs had stopped, the Braves had eight runs, and the ball game, and Pitchers Ring and Pertica were all mussed up. A few more hurlers were shot into the breach by Branch Rickey, and handed the same treatment.

* * *

Fillingim succeeded big John, and didn't have to pitch much. After the resultless frame he just breezed along, was hit fairly hard, and had a very easy time putting a victory on his record. As a spectacle it wasn't such a much, though the crowd did cheer the Brave batting, showing that perhaps only the experts think the lively ball was running the game.

* * *

Our Mister Barbare, a very dependable bird around the saucer, was the real batting hero. He lashed out a double in the first that scored the initial Brave run on the round, and paved the way for the second. Then he stepped up in the fourth and socked a single to center, knocking off two runs and putting the Braves in the lead.

* * *

Mighty! have been a bad day for Scott all 'round. Bill Beckert grabbed a difficult scrounger in the first, though he didn't, there were two out at the time, and then Hornsby's homer and three singles finished onto the scores.

* * *

The fourth provided a thrill, as it was a very good session for the Braves' fighting spirit. Hoike, first up, landed when Lavan lost the ground ball, continued weakly to left, and a single became a triple when McHenry tried to make a short fly count. Wallace retaliated on third while Gibson beat out a bounder at first and Fillingim struck.

Powell forced Ford at the plate, but Barbare made his second hit. Southworth followed with a single, and Cruise clipped a double to left. Hoeckel went out to Hoke and Ford both carved off monosacks before the side could be retired.

Ford hit safely twice in the inning and Hoike scored a pair of runs, which shows what a very good inning it was.

* * *

These Cardinals are a great hitting team, but their fielding isn't steady and their pitching isn't anything at all.

CORNETS WALLOP LAWRENCE 'CASEYS'

Lawrence, July 19.—The Cornets of Lynn defeated the local K. of C. team, 6 to 5, at O'Sullivan Park. The third inning was a hoodoo session for the local aggregation, in this inning there were four K. of C. errors, which netted the visitors five runs.

The Y. M. C. A. baseball team defeated the K. of C. ball team, 2 to 0, on the Beverly High School Athletic Grounds in the Beverly twilight series. Neither side was able to score for the first five innings, but the Y. M. C. A. team bunched their hits in the sixth and carried off the victory.

WHITE SOX TURN RED BACK IN TWO GAMES

Win First Battle, 5 to 4, in 10 Innings; Take Second, 4 to 3, in Nine Chicago, July 19.—Calamity befel the Red Sox here Monday, which certainly was a blue day for them. Twice the feeble White Sox arose and crossed the forks from Boston and they did so when it seemed the worst the visitors should have were ties. The first game was lost in ten innings, 5 to 4, and the second, 4 to 3, in nine.

* * *

Rain beat the Red Sox out of the last session. At the end of the eighth there was a vast downpour and play was suspended for a half hour. When it was resumed the Reds went out in order. Yaryan batted a fly back of second base. Leibold ran for the ball, skidding on the wet grass. He could not quite make the catch and Yaryan owned a single. Up came Hodge, the pitcher, and bunted. Down went Karr as soon as he started for the ball and the White Sox had two men on.

* * *

Davenport was sent in to run for Yaryan and he scored on Johnson's fly ball to left field. This was a legitimate single and Davenport did not even have to slide.

* * *

The first game was lost either by strategy that proved poor generalship or bad judgment on the part of Umpire Ellison. The Red Sox are inclined to blame the latter.

NEW ENGLAND PROS IN QUALIFYING ROUND

The majority are associated with Massachusetts golf.

They are, John Cowan, Oakley; Eddie Myers, Metacomet; Willie Hoare, Tedesco; George Dernback, Agawam; Jack Stait, Hartford; Lou Tellier, Bear Hill; Fred Miller, Homestead; Walter Howe, Tatnuck; J. J. McGrath, Commonwealth, and Harry Cowie, Bethlehem, N. H., shire.

Others formerly connected with New England golf are, Harry Ellis, Frank McNamara, Carl Anderson, George Kerrigan, Orrin Terry, Tommy Kerrigan, Alex Campbell, Ernest Anderson and Meg Ross.

TOM GIBBONS SIGNED TO MEET CARPENTIER

New York, July 19.—Tex Richard has signed Tom Gibbons to fight Georges Carpentier. The battle will be staged either at Jersey City arena or in Madison Square Garden. The promoter plans to have the men swap punches some day during the second week in October and to bill it as "the last fall." The winner gets championship of the world.

Carpentier won the title when he knocked out Battling Levinsky. The weight will be 175 pounds or under, a notch that is easy for both men to scale.

"MIRACLE MAN" MITCHELL'S FIVE PITCHING ACES

PLAYERS' STAND IS PUZZLING FANDOM

Many Are Declared to Be in Sympathy With 'Black Sox' Now on Trial

Reports from Chicago indicate that a great many of the major league ball players—even those held honest by the White Sox management—are in sympathy with the accused ball players who are on trial.

If the players not involved in the scandal really believe the others are honest, that they did not try to throw games in the 1919 world's series, their attitude is fine.

But the reports from Chicago declare that Manager Gleason and a number of those men who are now playing visited the accused Sox, shook hands with them, patted them on the back and wished them success.

Gleason was the first man to accuse the players of dishonest work. He accused them severally and individually. He even threatened to "use the rod"—which is thieves' slang for shooting—on some of them if they did not try to play. Then in public, where his actions might serve to aid them, he is quoted as calling them by familiar nicknames and giving them aid and encouragement.

The attitude of the honest players is the discouraging feature of the situation. However, it is not shared by all. It was not stated that Eddie Collins and Ray Schalk are members of the committee.

WILSON-ROBINSON BOUT SET RECORD

Figures received at the Boxing Commission on the fight Friday night at the Arena, A. C. at the Arena, at the Johnny Wilson-George Robinson contest, show that the largest crowd ever attending a fight in this city was on hand and the largest receipts ever collecting at a boxing show were taken in by the club officials.

The returns show that 9,415 persons paid for tickets, totaling $22,267, of which the State received $1,114.35. The most popular priced tickets were the $5.50 seats, where 2,512 paid $5 each, 2,657 paid $2, 2,611 paid $3, and the remainder were scattered at $1 and $2.

AMERICAN TENNIS ENTRIES LIMITED

Philadelphia, July 19.—Assurances having been received that there will be entries from at least five foreign countries, and possibly from seven, in the national tournament at the Germantown Cricket Club, beginning September 9, officials in charge of the event are confronted with the task of cutting down the American entry list, as only 128 players can be accommodated.

With teams entered from England, France, Japan, Australia and Denmark, comprising approximately 20 players, there will be accommodation for only slightly more than 100 American players.

Somersets Win

The Somerset C. C. of East Cambridge defeated the Chestnut A. C. of East Cambridge, 18 to 5, in a six-inning twilight game at Blake's Field. The winning team made twenty-five hits.

ALL UP FOR THE FIGHTING BRAVES

The big days in baseball are with us.

The Boston fans who have watched the Braves in their brilliant battles for top honors in the National league pennant race will have a real chance to show their loyalty the next few days.

The league leading Pirates invade the Home of Big Things tomorrow and the real fight will be on.

Not since the days away back in 1914 have the National leaguers in this town had a look in but today the eyes of the baseball world are focussed on the little old Wigwam.

"Miracle Man" Mitchell pays the fans a glowing tribute in saying their support alone has done wonders in keeping the Braves "up there."

"The boys cannot play good baseball to empty seats—no team can."

Do not let the team flunk for lack of support. Let every fan get out and root his very head off during this coming series with Pittsburgh and put Boston back where it belongs in the baseball world.

The Red Sox are hopelessly out of the running and the Braves have a mighty good chance to cop the old bunting.

BIG ENTRY LIST FOR TENNIS TOURNAMENT

More Than 200 Players Entered in Middle States Championship

Philadelphia, Pa., July 19.—More than 200 players will compete in the thirty-sixth annual tournament of the Middle States in men's singles and doubles to be held over the Cynwyd Club clay and asphalt courts, beginning next Saturday.

Wallace F. Johnson, national semi-finalist, winner of the 1920 Middle States singles championship, has entered again and will be obliged to play through the tournament. Johnson and Stanley W. Pearson are the doubles title holders.

The team winning the men's doubles also wins the Middle States sectional doubles championship and qualifies to play in the national doubles championship at Forest Hills August 22. The entries for the Middle States singles close Friday, July 22, and the doubles Saturday, July 23.

BENNY LEONARD TO BEGIN TRAINING SOON

New York, July 19.—Benny Leonard will start in a few days to get ready for his fracas with Lew Tendler in Philadelphia. The lightweight champion intends to do most of his training in Saratoga, but is seriously thinking of doing some preliminary work at the Airdrome in this city, where Jack Dempsey worked before the Brennan fight. The champion intends to be in perfect shape for Tendler. This is one fight in which it will be a case of "thumbs down" right from the start.

Tilden Is Winner

Providence, July 19. — William T. Tilden defeated R. B. Weeder in straight sets, 6—3, 6—1, in the first round of the Rhode Island State tennis championship.

Notre Dames Win

The Notre Dame nine defeated the Immaculate Conception baseball team by the score of 2 to 1 at the Randolph Street Playgrounds, South End.

THREE COLLEGE STARS WITH GIANTS

Berry and Warwick of Penn and Roder of Syracuse Play With McGraws

New York, July 19.—Three college baseball stars made their profession-al debuts at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. They were Howard Berry of Pennsylvania, the most illustrious of the trio, who broke in as a Giant, and a new Pirate battery, Drew Rader, a big left hander from Syracuse, and Firman Warwick, catcher, from Pennsylvania.

Berry, who is a great all around athlete and came to the Giants as an outfielder, ran for Bancroft in the eighth, after Bancroft had made his third hit and in the ninth went to second base, while Rawlings moved over to short. Berry had one chance and accepted it well.

Rader faced the Giants after the fury of their attack had been spent. The big fellow looks as if he might turn out a first class southpaw. He is right handed.

With Frisch of Fordham, Cutshaw of Notre Dame and Nehf of Rose Poly, the field was fairly cluttered up with collegians.

TOM GIBBONS WILL HELP BROTHER TRAIN

New York, July 19.—Mike Gibbons, who is scheduled to box Augie Ratner at the open-air arena at Dyckman oval, will have the assistance of his brother, Tom, while preparing for the mill. On the same night Jackson meets Pete Hartley in another ten round event.

Preceding these two big attractions, Manager Eddie McMahon has arranged to stage two more ten-rounders. Johnny Murray is down on the score card to mingle with Johnny Reisler, and the setto will bring together Jimmy Duffy and Phil Delmont.

Cemetery Golf

A cemetery tournament will be played next Saturday afternoon at the Lexington Golf Club. On the following Saturday, July 30, the event will be handicap vs. par.

The Third Lanarks of Scotland and the Massachusetts All-Stars will give the fans of New England the fastest and classiest exhibition of soccer ever seen on this side of the Atlantic at the Little River Playground, Lynn, tonight at 6:30.

* * *

For the past few weeks the Massachusetts soccer fans have been looking forward with great anticipation to this contest and will avail themselves of the opportunity to witness the greatest aggregation of international soccer stars in action. Thousands of tickets have been sold in advance and a record attendance is expected.

* * *

The visiting team arrived this morning from New York and was met at the South Station by hundreds of old acquaintances and admirers. After breakfast at the Exeter Street hotel the players proceeded to the General Electric plant, where they were shown about by officials of the company.

* * *

The able and creditable manner in which the selecting committee picked the players to represent this State, Saturday the conditions under which they worked, is worthy of mention. It is a task which few men would undertake, but it is the consensus of opinion that they have done exceedingly well in their selection.

* * *

Six of the players honored with places on this representative eleven were members of the fine Fore River team of last season. They are Mc-Intosh, goal; Churchley and Black, halfbacks, and Shepherd, Page and Farquhar, forwards. The last named player is the cleverest outside-right in this country, and with his wing partner, Davy Page, should show favorably with the visitors. "Dundee" Willie Shepherd is another star who deserved to show some class. Take-all in all the team should hold their own.

FORMER ATHLETE WINS CITY APPOINTMENT

New York, July 19.—James P. McNeill, who represented the Pastime A. C. years ago in middle distance events, and later a member of the Walkers' Club of Boston, has recently appointed chief of the New York City office of the State Agricultural Bureau. He had been employed in the State Excise Department for twenty-five years and during the past five years was Excise Commissioner.

WATERBURY PLAYER SETS NEW BATTING RECORD

Waterbury, July 19.—Shorty Long, third baseman of the Waterbury Eastern League Club and leading hitter of the league, yesterday established a new record for consecutive hitting on President O'Neil's circuit by hitting safely in the twenty-ninth straight game. The previous record for the league was made by Paul Johnson of the Worcester Club last season, when he hit in twenty-five straight games.

HUGE FIELD OF GOLFERS STARTS AFTER TITLE AT WASHINGTON

By Robert E. Harlow.

Washington, July 19.—America's greatest golf championship began on the links of the Columbia Country Club here today, when one-half of the field of 260 experts went away in the testing eighteen holes qualifying round.

The other players will qualify tomorrow. Professionals regard this as the most exacting qualifying round ever held in a championship, as no player can afford to go badly on more than two holes and hope to be among the seventy-two players who will qualify for the championship proper.

* * *

Jock Hutchison, winner of the British open title; Abe Mitchell, the long-hitting English professional, and Joe Kirkwood, the Australian open champion, are the favorites, but with such a fast field many considers the affair a lottery, with any one of twenty players a possible winner.

Weather conditions were good when the first pair got away, Joe Kirkwood, the Australian open champion, was the first real star to start and a gallery of 300 trailed behind.

Jock Hutchison and Abe Mitchell were paired and were followed by 100.

The Professional Golfers' Association has voted a formal protest against an eighteen-hole qualifying round and requesting that in the future it be extended to thirty-six holes.

* * *

The low scores in practice made it seem certain that nothing worse than a 78 would qualify. Wagers were made at even money that this figure would be required and that 68 would be bettered before the championship ends.

* * *

Walter Hagen, Kirkwood and Mitchell were the three most prominent players to participate in today's qualifying round.

* * *

The short circuits is not popular with the stars, who feel that over a longer distance their class would be bodied to the fore. They realize that all of the starters are capable of maintaining a fast pace for one round at least and for this reason it will take a low score to get in the tournament proper.

* * *

Scores in practice indicate that nothing worse than a 78 will stand a chance of being in the first 36 either today and such a well read player as Joe Kirkwood stated that he feared the qualifying round more than the championship, and would not like to come to the score headed with anything worse than a 76.

* * *

The preliminary practice indicates that when the players settle down to the long 72 holes for the title, beginning Thursday, that some sensational golf will be played. All of the stars have been showing the 175 mark in practice, Bobby Jones and Joe Sylvester being under that figure.

GOLF NOTES

Lou Tellier, John Cowan and George Fernback are the strongest New England professionals in today's qualifying round. All three were expected to get into the championship proper.

* * *

The White Mountain resorts are well represented with Alex Chisholm, Portland; Harry Cowie, Bethlehem, and Ernest Ryall, Waumbeck, among the starters. Cowie in four practice rounds did two 76s, a 72 and a 76. All of these players hit their shots well in practice.

* * *

Joe Horgan is going to carry for Jock Hutchison in this tournament. He will then caddie the watchdog of George Duncan's bag for his eastern tour. Duncan caddied for Harry Vardon last Summer.

* * *

There are a large number of caddies here who beat their way from far points to get in the game. The championship and caddy for a favorite.

* * *

Each year sees more special correspondents at the national golf championships. This year they had registered at press headquarters Monday night, with more expected today.

* * *

Harry Hampton, former Massachusetts professional, may be unable to start because of a crushed thumb. A Pullman window dropped on his hand while he was making the trip to Washington and he cannot grip his clubs properly.

* * *

Mike Brady, former Oakley professional, played a foursome against Abe Mitchell and John Gandarson. Brady and his partner, J. J. Farrell, of Quaker Ridge, won on the home green, where Farrell had a birdie three. Mitchell was around in 74 and Mike in 71.

* * *

Mike Brady says Mitchell is by far the longest driver here. We are cautious to see if Brady's Guilford can put the ball out as far as Mitchell.

* * *

Hagen, Kirkwood and Mitchell were among today's starters. It would be a calamity if any one of the three failed to qualify.

* * *

Jock Hutchison, Kirkwood and Mitchell are the hot favorites to win the title.

* * *

* * *

Jock Hutchison rested today.

* * *

C. J. McGrath of Commonwealth and John Cowan had birdies in their last practice round, Cric taking one at the sixth, where he put his second, and Cowan sinking a long putt for a three at the 12th.

* * *

New England professionals like the way Jack Shea, of Kenwood is whaling the ball off the tees. He is getting good distance and keeping in the middle.

MAGNATES KILL INTEREST WITH NEW BALL

Crowds Falling Off Despite Assertions of Powers That Be in Game

By SID MERCER.

New York, July 19.—John Heydler, president of the National League; Charles Stoneham of the Giants and Squire Ebbets of Flatbush hasten to assure us that there is no statement in the interest in baseball which established amazing attendance records last season.

* * *

Nevertheless it is patent to anyone with ordinary powers of observation that attendance has fallen off so badly that it is a matter of concern to the club owners.

* * *

Stoneham says that the Giants have played to 25 per cent more people this season than in a corresponding period last year. This is quite like. But isn't it a fact that the Giants have played more games at the Polo Grounds this year than they did in the same period last year and have had fewer games postponed?

* * *

Heydler says the National League has drawn 150,000 more persons to its games in the first half of the season than it did last year. But he forgot to mention that the improvement in the Boston and St. Louis clubs and a revival of interest in Pittsburgh is responsible for this showing.

* * *

Winning teams will always draw crowds. But in cities represented by second division clubs business is worse than last year. Chicago, St. Louis and New York, the two largest cities, are not up to the 1920 mark.

* * *

The Yankees, never far from first place, are not beginning to equal last year's business at home. The management admits this.

* * *

The crowds on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays is the "tip off." Last season these days saw the parks filled drawing to capacity. Both the Yankees and Giants drew well at the beginning of the season, but the mid-summer average is far below what it was in 1920. Of course the general business depression has hurt baseball, but the scandals, indifferent playing and the Hardy ball.

The lack of good pitching, the orgy of home runs and extra base hits and the big fight, however, robbed the game of much of the glamour and publicity that made baseball a front banner one. The slump is on despite what the magnates say.

FRED ST. ONGE BACK AFTER RECORD TRIP

Fred St. Onge, the noted bicycle rider, looking just the same as when he rode up Corey Hill, twenty-five years ago, arrived on the wheel trip that covered forty-four cities, from Seattle, via San Diego up to Seattle, and back via Salt Lake City, Indianapolis and Chicago.

In the last twenty years St. Onge has preached the gospel of cycling for health and pleasure to over 100,000 schoolboys and girls. He conducted forty-four big social rides, the same number of parades and has ridden in American a year ago. He has ridden with 25,000 bicycle riders in the last year.

With Mrs. St. Onge, who has always accompanied him on his trips, they celebrated their 25th anniversary in Yosemite Valley being among the first tourists to make the trip this year.

St. Onge has traveled this wide world over and says he is sure glad to get back to the Hub of the Universe.

CADDIE BEATS WAY TO TITLE TOURNAMENT

Washington, July 19.—Charles Hall of Birmingham, Ala., will be entered in the national Open Golf Championship, to-day, on a freight train. Such is the fan faithfulness. Just as the Birmingham player was teeing off today he noticed a ragged, barefooted little darkey watching him intently. He asked the youngster if he was a favorite club-carrier from his home club. "How did you get here?" Hall asked the boy. "Rode the freight," was the surprise. "Ah beat mah way, suh. Ah'm on a freight train, suh." Should Hall be the winner, there is one caddie who will be fittingly rewarded for faithfulness.

LIGHTWEIGHT CHAMP BECOMES HORSE OWNER

New York, July 19.—Benny Leonard, the lightweight champion, has become a horse owner and will hereafter divide his interest between boxing and the turf. He yesterday purchased the four-year-old Neddom from the Reformer Stable and turned him over to William Travers to train. Travers is the trainer of the Fairmount Stable, in which Billy Gibson, manager of Benny, is interested. Neddom is entered in the Arrow Selling Stakes today, in which the lightweight champion's colors will be seen for the first time.

BOXING LOVERS OPPOSE JOHNSON-WILLS BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

Those men who are really interested in the future welfare of the boxing game in New York have opened war on the proposed bout between Jack Johnson and Harry Wilson, scheduled for Brooklyn. They are not trying to prevent the fight, for the gate and the Johnson has signed a full contingent and neither was doing it out of grace to the boxing game but rather on account of the age of the two men.

Johnson is forty years old. Wilson is past thirty-one. Neither of them is in the prime of life and at that age the best of fighters are not to be depended upon. Johnson has been out of the ring for more than three years and Wilson has been idle for a considerable length of time.

Johnson at his best was only a great defensive fighter. He never finished his opponents in quick order. The other fellow usually tired himself out trying to hit Johnson. The latter would then begin fighting and didn't require much of a wallop to gain a victory. The dethroned champion has been foolish enough to talk about meeting Dempsey. The latter would be able to knock out Johnson inside of a round.

Speaking of a return match between Dempsey and Johnson, there are certain people who still believe that Jack Johnson was not the champion when he lost the title to Jess Willard. They claim that Johnson threw the fight in order to get out of his contract with Willard. Now, if this be true, Johnson would be entitled to no consideration in conquering Dempsey in a return bout contest to a decision.

There are certain people who still believe that Jack Dempsey won credit for defeating Georges Carpentier. They claim that the fact that the Frenchman was knocked out in the first round was due entirely to fear on the part of Carpentier that he would be killed by the champion. Now, if this be true, Dempsey would be entitled to no consideration in conquering Johnson in a return bout contest to a decision.

Now, if this be true, Dempsey would be entitled to no consideration in conquering Johnson in a return bout contest to a decision.

When Wilson fought O'Dowd here in Boston, these gentlemen had it all doped out how St. Paul Michael was going to win in a punch. Instead Wilson grabbed the decision.

"But Wilson will not stopped if he meets O'Dowd again," said the Knocking Thomases.

Wilson did meet Mike for the second time. He fought him in New York before O'Dowd's own friends. And he handed him a more decisive thumping than he did when they clashed for the first time.

The boys with the lumps of knowledge thereing out all over their intelligent brows then said Robinson could defeat Wilson. And the champion, to prove these ones are were wrong, risked his title in a decision battle and won handily.

Maybe if Wilson should now step forth and defeat Georges Carpentier and Jack Dempsey these same genius men would continue harping on the

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

A very prominent business man recently applied for a large amount of life insurance. Based on the report of its doctors, the company replied that it could not accept him at the regular rates. The business man was most indignant. He claimed that he was in no way sickly and he demanded to know why he was not a satisfactory risk.

* * *

The matter finally came before the president of the insurance company, and the chief medical director was requested to investigate all the facts. He did so. Then he wrote the business man a straight-from-the-shoulder letter. What he told the man was, in effect, this:

"You eat too much and exercise too little. You're thicker round the abdomen than around the chest. You are to heavy and too flabby. You probably spend so much time taking care of your business that you take no time to keep yourself in proper physical trim. You doubtless study every move you make in business, but you certainly do not study the needs of your body. You probably neglect your health and yourself. There is nothing specially wrong with any part of your body, but your body as a whole is not in proper condition. If you he a high priced horse which your farm manager allowed to get into the kind of condition you are in, you would reprimand him and perhaps dismiss him. At least you ought to. You are not a good risk and will not be a good risk until you begin to devote some of the thought to taking care of your body which you now devote to taking care of your business."

* * *

Is it not too true that a great many men spend their health in wasting a fortune and then spend their fortune in an effort to win back their health?

* * *

Harriman died because he neglected to take care of his health.

The late J. P. Morgan had the physique of a giant, and would probably have lived a decade or more longer had he exercised common sense in keeping himself in shape. Instead, he never took an active interest in his body demanded, consistently smoked enormous, powerful cigars strong enough to sicken an ordinary mortal, and otherwise neglected to give his body a fair chance. Then came '07. Vail lived until he was seventy-five. He, too, originally was as strong as an ox, but he never allowed business more than he loved exercise, and had to pay the penalty for years before he died. Muldoon, the expugilist who now runs a remarkable establishment for putting run-down financial and business men into trim, tells amazing stories of the shocking neglect common among men who come to him for suggestions as to all other matters. Dr. Keller of Battle Creek has had similar experiences.

* * *

There was an exodus of wealthy Americans every year before the war to Carlsbad and other European resorts where the overfed are "boiled out" and starved back into condition. In most cases the only thing the matter with these patients was gluttony, combined with neglect of exercise.

* * *

Now, isn't it shortsighted for big business men who reckon their time as being worth many dollars per hour, to concentrate so completely on business, and to eat at home as they are compelled every once in a while to withdraw entirely from activities for the purpose of "recuperating a time"? Isn't it mighty poor business for a brainy man to insist upon his automobile being kept in a better state of repair than he keeps himself in?

* * *

Ought it not to be plain to every rational human being, no matter what his station in life, that he cannot hope to go on doing a maximum of hard work if he keeps himself in soft condition?

* * *

You would be astonished if you could read a list of conspicuously prominent financial and business leaders whose health is so bad as to handicap them very seriously in their daily tasks. Frank A. Vanderlip stayed so long chained to overwhelmingly important tasks that he is now a semi-invalid. H. P. Davison has had to withdraw completely from business activities because of a complete nervous breakdown. Charles M. Schwab looks so robust and smiles so much that few suspect that his health is far from satisfactory and that at times he suffers the most intense pain from stomach trouble. Porter, of Morgan & Co., has also had to pay the penalty of overwork. Near where I live there is and operated a car of another brilliant automobile leader who is now an invalid; his mind cracked under the terrific strain he imposed upon himself, when, for years, he worked from twelve to sixteen hours a day without a break.

* * *

After all, what shall it profit a man if he roll up a million dollars, or ten million dollars, or a hundred million dollars, if in the process he sacrifices that without which life is not worth living, health?

Are you acting sensibly in this supremely important matter of health?

Latest Copper Quotations

As regards the copper market, it is said that prices were shaded yesterday. At the end of last week large selling interests were asking 13 cents and small dealers 12¾ to 13, but yesterday's quotations of 12¾ to 12½ cents were reductions of ¼ of a cent per pound.

RELAXATION OF MONEY RATES BENEFICIAL

Situation Generally, However, Is Not Inspiring in Financial Circles

By C. B. EVANS

Chicago, July 19.—While the citizen in this heated spell is wishing he had a job indoors, some improve nothing over him and that the wind would play along his skin a little more freely, he has in the main reached a condition of stoicism and become reconciled to the idea that this is just what August is for. Neither he nor his are as trade is concerned.

He is asking whether anything has been done to relieve the present world conditions. He finds that favorable events make no impression and that pessimistic influences in the city have important matters up their sleeves that are so far unrevealed is no probability of such matters slipping out into the open.

The companies see no use in publishing any of these things which are not favorable to their interests and put them and price none at all. But the sag is running in the cornstalks and the wheat is in their fields and the cotton is in their bolls.

The negotiations for a conference on limitation of armaments, the perplexing position of the British-Irish controversy and the decision that there is no immediate way to be found in kind are among the incidents and developments that will help clear the business itself.

Indeed the indemnistic decision will have its effect on international exchange, which merely needs a lift, to judge from quotations of today.

Among happenings that have impressed the public greatly are the reports showing the gains in resources of the great financial institutions of New York, which are the latest bank statements in response to official calls.

MERGER BENEFICIAL.

The merging of the Great Lakes Trust Company, which had deposits of less than $7,000,000, into the Central Trust Company, a strong institution with $50,000,000, as one banker puts it, "is only now spent among Chicago banks." The fate of the Great Lakes Trust Company was long foreseen. A pebble rolling down a mountain side precipitates a landslide. There is a little.

The loop is the place for big banks. Retail and other concerns down town are altogether too high for banks with small deposits although within the financial business district there are many small institutions enjoying great prosperity.

Not till a lot of these painful readjustments have been made will we have reached a culmination will it be time to discuss the future basis of operations along the best of our expectations. That is the time when business really will begin to revive, when the country under their own steam begins to look for things to arise, when the really strong concerns take the leadership.

There are many companies throughout the country that have written off their losses concealed in their accounts but unnoticed by the public. We believe allowed for the price of the stocks in some instances to represent an amount even less than these surpluses.

One Chicago concern, compared by a local banker with Studebaker, is said to have a surplus nearly double its capital stock, in which case the price of the stock represents assets, yet the stock has fallen to about one-third of its market price.

OPTIMISM LACKING.

But for the present the situation is little inspiring. The new money which is being put into circulation is wanted to fill up old holes and not to create a surplus. The holes must be filled before there will be such a condition of solvency and capital abundance as to justify forward movement.

Paying for a "dead horse" is proverbially a disagreeable occupation. Fortunately thus far ready capital for these purposes has been obtainable, such has been the opportunity sold to the United States and so well has the credit system been developed under the Federal Reserve System and other agencies. The floating capital is still abundant and the reduction in rates for money promises a still easier condition.

After the liquidation has proceeded a considerable distance farther we shall see the advantage of this operation. Already here and there a beginning has been made on the return trip, but nothing having a material effect on the whole situation.

May Cut Mill Wages More

A local financial publication says that the cotton industry in Fall River is not operating at more than 60 per cent capacity and that some mills have been shut down as a prelude to further wage reductions. "New England mill owners," it is stated, "have felt for a long time that additional drastic cuts were essential. Southern wages have been cut 45 per cent, whereas New England wages have been cut only 22½ per cent, and as a result the South has been making money at the expense of the Eastern manufacturer."

Crop and Trade Reports

The Canadian Pacific crop report says the agricultural outlook in the Dominion is the best in six years. Wheat harvesting will begin in the first week in August.

In 1920 this country imported German products to the value of $11,000,000, as contrasted with exports to Germany of about $311,000,000.

During the July 16 week the Goodyear company sold more than 12,000 complete tire units, doing the largest business through agents in its history.

Mexican oil production in California during May totaled 337,627 barrels, a decrease of 534 as compared with May. Seventy-six new wells were completed during the month with an initial daily production of 19,965 barrels.

Railroad Items

On July 8 idle cars in this country totaled 240,525, a decrease of 4,206 compared with July 1.

The Erie net operating deficit of $224,126 for the first six months of 1921 was $1,000,000 less than for any month up to that one this year. The five months its operating deficit was $4,326,917, compared with a deficit in the corresponding six period of 1920 of $6,105,929.

Per 1920, operations the Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Western Railroad Co. reports revenues, $1,956,331 and deficit of $271,166.

Louisville & Nashville maintenance cost in April was equal to 27.9 per cent of gross revenues, 43.2 per cent of March gross went to maintenance, 49 percent in February and 43.3 per cent in January.

OILS IN A RALLY WHEN TRADING BEGINS

Morning Trend Upward; Rails and Steels Participate in a General Advance

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, but little below the high-set level of the second hour. There was profit-taking after short covering during the morning. Trading was more active, first hour transactions exceeding 140,000 shares. Prices ranged from fractions to more than four points. Mexican Petroleum advanced the most, but lost more than half its gain.

Call loans renewed at 6 per cent. Foreign exchange rates continued to decline, demand sterling being off 1¼ cents at $3.58¾.

Among prominent stocks were Beth lehem B, Baldwin, Atchison, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, American Woolen, Central Leather, Hide and Leather preferred Reading, United Fruit and Studebaker. General Electric sold at a new low for the year, but recovered.

FIRST PRICES HIGHER.

Among the oil issues Mexican was a full and the second was led by Doheny stocks. Mexican Petroleum opened with a gain of 1-2 and Pan American 2 1-2. Texas & Pacific, known as an oil road, climbed the list 2¾ points on its initial transaction. Steels became with slight improvement, as was the case with motors and rails. Exceptionally strong issues in the two groups last were Studebaker and Union Pacific. American Sugar sustained a fractional loss at the start and Cuban American sold 1 point higher. Copper and coppers showed little change in a few sales. Atlantic Gulf and Central Agatha preferred made more than a point advance to some extent within a few minutes. The list as a whole showed tendency after a brief spell of uncertainty and displayed strength at the end of an hour.

CONGRESS HELPED OIL.

Strength of the shares of oil companies operating in Mexico is ascribed due to the action of the House in putting crude oil on the free list. The suppression of Mexican oil was originally intended to help the domestic industry, but it has had the opposite effect, including lower commercial paper prices. It is regarded as inevitable now that a reciprocal arrangement with Mexico, encouraging report from Washington concerned exists. It showed a gain of 1 point for the day at 187 on the sixteen switching companies of C. T. Corporation, as against 187 bid and 189 asked compared with a deficit of $5,429,000 for May last year.

Wall Street Briefs

Steel output plunitory in Wyoming, Colorado and Montana, according to reports, was curtailed with 3,000 acres less than a month ago. Production of coal in the state for the first six months of 1921 was 1,000,000 tons, as against 2,000,000 for the first six months in 1920. Sales for the first six months of 1921 were $1,000,000, as against $1,956,000 for the same period in 1920.

Pullman directors are expected to declare the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent when they meet this week.

The Pennsylvania National Lead Company has declared a dividend of 1½ per cent, the first since it was organized five years ago. Additional dividends are expected, accumulations being for six months ended June 30. Net profits for the first six months of 1921 were $120,000, as against $2,700,000 foreign government loans were sold this country.

Dividend Declarations

Portland (Oregon) Gas & Coke Co. declared quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on preferred stock.

Pittsburgh Steel Company of Pittsburgh, Co. declared quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on preferred stock, payable August 15.

Lake Superior Corporation declared a dividend of 1½ per cent on common stock of record July 15.

The Pittsburgh Steel Co. declared quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on preferred stock, payable August 15 to stock of record July 30.

The regular quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent on preferred and 1½ per cent on Connecticut Railway & Light Co. will be paid August 15 to stock of record July 30 to August 16.

Pullman Co. Company declared semi-annual dividend of 5 per cent on each of shares of capital stock, payable August 15 to shares in ratable proportion to common stock of record July 15.

The Pittsburgh Steel Co. declared quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on preferred stock, payable August 15 to stock of record July 30. Committee on New York Stock Exchange has declared preferred dividend shall not be quoted ex-dividend, but that rights shall be quoted ex-dividend. All deliveries after July 29 must be accompanied by a due bill for dividend.

Crude Rubber Advances

New York, July 19.—Crude rubber became stronger today with the speculative demand is increasing and the price advanced 1-16 cent. Sales were probably small. Crude rubber, first latex crepe, is quoted last week at 12 1-16 cents, as against 11 15-16 cents a week ago. Ribbed smoked sheets are 11 7-16 cents at which small sales are reported in the previous week.

London Market

London, July 19.—The stock markets dull today. Canada 4½s, Rios war loans, 45. Russian 5s 12; 4½s 9; 4s 9. Rios 5s 31.

The Trend of STEEL STOCKS

Unusual conditions have suddenly developed as regards steel companies' assets as to warrant investors' closest attention.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

By MONITOR

New York, July 19.—Steadiness al- most amounting to firmness throughout the general list, with instances of special weakness, contributed to give Monday's stock market a puzzling and irregular aspect. The sugar stocks made relatively the best showing, and most of the well-known issues in this group made moderate gains. The steels were fairly steady and while the rails were rather inactive there was a noticeable subsidence of the pressure that was so marked in the closing days of last week. The equipments also acted better, with Baldwin making a sharp advance on a story to the effect that earnings for the first six months of the present year were above the ratio last of year.

HEAVY trading featured the decline in Atlantic Gulf & West Indies as a result of the announcement of a judicial decision held up pending an accounting in current litigation. The strain in the financial affairs of the company and the rumors of overdue taxes in Mexico combined to depress with transactions exceeding those in any other issue of the list. Mexican Petroleum, after a period of strength, broke sharply on varying reports regarding the status of the import tax, as the vote of the House was announced until after the close. This group was also depressed by reports of the Mexican Oils Company. Selling in General Electric was a reflection of the prevailing belief that the stock is too high on merely an 8 per cent. basis.

IN VIEW of the renewed weakness in foreign exchange with sterling breaking to $3.58 3-8, the general market displayed a considerable power of resistance. Professional sentiment is bearish, and public interest at a minimum.

THE general tone of the market was firm, with a general trend of quotations higher. There were a few exceptions, notably Atlantic Gulf and West Indies, Mexican Petroleum and General Electric, in which were the largest declines. Nevertheless transactions were of a desultory sort.

ATLANTIC GULF declined within a fraction of its low record on the announcement of a court decision refusing to release $1,200,000, which has been impounded pending the accounting in the so-called Mount suit. It is reported that there are some $600,000 of taxes in arrears due the Mexican government two years ago, which have not been paid and it is said that non-payment will result in confiscation of the Atlantic Gulf Oil Company's property by the Mexican government.

GENERAL ELECTRIC was carried to a new low for the present movement on the buying of substantial banking interests, it is understood. The reasons for this selling were explained last week in the Wall Street Journal.

UNDER the lead of Cuba Cane Sugar Pfd., the sugar stocks generally were firm. This issue advanced more than five points from the low record on a more general knowledge of the immediate financial requirements of the company having been satisfactorily settled. Reports of improvement in refining conditions are responsible for the improvement in the other stocks of this group.

The steel stocks were steady de- spite reports regarding drastic price cutting by the independent companies, and reports of concessions by some of the subsidiaries of the Steel Corporation. The recent reduction by the Corporation did not equal the open market selling price, and the Street assumes that further reductions will be announced presently.

Wall street is doing a good deal of guessing as to the earnings for the second quarter to be reported by the corporations, but in general is believed that these will approximate $18,000,000 net.

The large producers of copper have been holding their price at 13 cents for nearby deliveries, although some smaller producers have been doing a limited business at 12½ cents. Yesterday morning the large interests reduced their price to 12½ c, and the smaller companies dropped to 12¼. Selling agencies report practically no demand for the metal even at the reduced prices.

CALL money in the outside market remained at 5½ per cent, although the 6 per cent. rate was maintained unofficially in the Curb and Stock Exchange. There was little money wanted and although supplies were light, they were more than equal to the demand. Time money is nominally 6 for sixty per cent, but little is available. Two weeks ago about $10,000,000 was loaned at 6 per cent. for thirty, sixty and ninety days, and it is said that an equal amount could be loaned on the same terms now were it available. Bankers give no hope of permanently easier time money rates.

SOME attention was attracted by the strength and activity in Transcontinental Oil, but the stock has few followers. Its market is dominated by a small clique, hence little significance it attached to the movements of the stock.

THE official quotation on first grade of Latex Crepe crude rubber was fixed at 14½ cents per pound, an advance of one cent from last week and of 1¾ cents from the average of figures. It is understood that this advance is more sentimental than actual, very few sales having been exported since the 11-cent price was made.

THE equipment stocks, after some hesitation became strong with Baldwin and American Car & Foundry the leaders. From an early low of 73, Baldwin ran above 76 on a report that net earnings for the first six months after depreciation and taxes, were $5,000,000, as compared with $7,307,000 for the full year 1920. This report declared also that the company had paid off $11,000,000 in bank loans and more than $3,000,000 in the banks.

As was the case generally through- out the list, the leaders in the advance of Baldwin found a thin market upon which to realize profits. The break in Canadian Pacific on a report that dealer sales last week were the largest in the history of the company, 27,000 complete tire units being sold. The output of the Akron plant now is 28,000 tires daily and that of the California plant is 3,500 daily. These operations represent 86 per cent. of the peak of the company's production.

COCOA COLA COMPANY reports earnings for May of $376,680 and June is estimated at $400,000, giving a net for the first half-year of $1,-776,678, as compared with $3,983,294 in the same period a year ago. It is understood this month the company will declare the extra dividends due on sugar, and under a new contract the sugar will be contributed by the concern goes into effect November 1, more satisfactory net earnings are anticipated.

MEXICAN Petroleum was strong early on a statement that President Harding was in favor of excluding crude oil from the list of the Fordney tariff bill. Before noon reports were current that the embargo would be excluded by the House by a very small vote and this brought out selling into the list. Later on it is said that President Harding declared himself against the embargo, which may be used for allowing Americans to obtain oil concessions in Mexico, which have been held back on this rise, and finding there was no stock offered for sale in the market, carrying the price under par. The favorable vote on the tariff was not known to Wall street when it closed.

Gold From Russia

During the first half of this year Sweden shipped $42,892,402 in gold to this country and it is a question how large a part of it came from Russia. The Soviet government has been forced to export its Baltic to be melted in Swedish mints into the standard bars of those institutions. In return it is said to yield $15,000,000 in silver bullion to the U. S. authorities. In fact, a great deal of mystery is attached to recent gold imports from Sweden.

Income Tax Distribution

The local division of the Massachusetts tax commission estimates $5,942,974 as the probable amount from income tax collections, to be distributed among cities and towns to reimburse them for losses through being deprived of power locally to assess taxes on property. Last year the figure was $6,250,830. Income taxes are expected to yield $14,000,000 this year against $16,861,496 a year ago. In addition a surplus of $2,426,000 is to be apportioned to municipalities.

Government Silver Buying

U. S. Treasury buying of silver under the Pittman act now totals 62,-000,000 ounces. It has paid $57,200,000 for this amount, and has purchased 250,000 ounces for the Denver mint.

Is this the time to accumulate stocks?

FIRM TONE TO THE BOSTON MARKET

But Local Trading Continues Dull and Narrow; Curb List Rules Strong

The Boston market had a better tone this morning, prices ruling higher at the opening and subsequently. But it was no more active than the day before, and trading was quite as lacking in health. American Telephone and Lists continued to lead in activity. Rwy & Company was the only packing issue which inspired any interest. Copper Range was the leader in the mining department. Rails were in evidence, but dealt in on a small scale. Calumet and Hecla advanced 2, American Sugar preferred 1-2 and Edison. American Sugar common receded a point.

Fractional gains were made by Boston & Maine, New Haven, Mass. United Shoe and National Leather, Swift International, Amoskeag, Superior & Boston, and Vest End. Stocks to sell fractionally lower included Swift & Co., Gray & Davis, Greenfield Tap, Copper Rang, United Fruit and General Electric.

CURB MARKET FIRM.

The Curb market was little firmer this morning and had fairly active start. Kerry leaded the list, which was the most featured issue, & Montana. At the end 2 an hour Boston & Montana was up 1 cent at 60 cents. Eureka 9 cents at 43 cents, Alpha 1 cent at 74 cents and Crystal 1 cent at 13 cents. Mutual and Vex Mines had lost opening gains of a cent for each.

KIDNAPING OF CHILDREN IS FALSE ALARM

Worcester Police Aid Two Mothers to Regain the Custody of Offspring

Worcester, July 19.—The Worcester police were instrumental in restoring to the custody of their mothers three children who were thought to have been kidnaped, but were found to have been held from their mothers against court orders.

Two bright-eyed youngsters, Marie, nine years old, and Walter Nally, eight years old, had a "gang" auto ride interrupted by Patrolman Walter King, who, acting on information sent here by the police of Watertown, held Mrs. Pauline Nally and her children.

SHOWS COURT DECREE.

Mrs. Nally had been seen taking the children away from Watertown in a machine and there was a kidnaping "false alarm." Mrs. Nally had a court decree, Chief Cahill said, giving custody of the children. She showed this to the Worcester police and was permitted to retain them.

A short time later it became necessary for the police to assist Mrs. Helen K. Dudley of Rochester, N. Y., to recover her daughter, Doris, six years old, from the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Nancy Dudley, of No. 49 May street.

Mrs. Dudley had obtained a divorce from her husband, John, a former Worcester man, on grounds of adultery and came here to get her daughter, awarded her by court order from Boston.

GRANDMOTHER CHANGES MIND.

She was informed at the grandmother's home that the girl would be taken from the house only over the dead body of its grandmother," but the aged woman experienced a change of mind when the police officers arrived. Mother and daughter are now on their way to Rochester.

VOLUNTEERS GRADE LOT OF ARLINGTON CHURCH

A call has been sent out for volunteers in order that the lot adjoining the new edifice of the Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, Massachusetts avenue, corner of Gardner street, in Arlington, may be graded. Twenty men have already offered their services, and they are working during the evening hours.

Falls From Truck

Worcester, July 19.—Thomas Flynn, 14 years old, of No. 553 Southbridge street, fell from an automobile truck and sustained a fractured right thigh.

Plays That Remain

TREMONT THEATRE—The twelfth week of George M. Cohan's comedians in the musical comedy, "The O'Brien Girl," began at the Tremont Theatre last evening. Last night was designated "O'Brien Night," a large number of the audience present bearing the name the show has made so popular. Mr. Cohan was present to confer the Cohan diamond ring upon the girl voted to have the prettiest smile, and thus the occasion was made the more memorable for the large audience present. The engagement is now approaching the period when time-closing weeks will be announced, and because of this, the demand for seats will be greater than ever.

GLOBE THEATRE—The tremendous popularity which has attended the showings of the world-famed photoplay, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," during the past twelve weeks has followed it into the new home, on the Tremont-Washington street, near Boylston.

HOLD METHUEN MAN FOR USING BAT ON DAUGHTER

Methuen, July 19.—Pending the outcome of injuries sustained by Mr. and Mrs. James Sciola, of No. 237 Merrimac street, the case against Mrs. Sciola's father, C. Tanalfo, was continued to Aug. 2 by police court until later in the week. The father is charged with assault and battery in having used a baseball bat over the heads of his daughter and her husband in a family affair. Both victims were taken to the Lawrence General Hospital. The husband suffered from severe scalp wounds and Mrs. Sciola, who is in the hospital suffering from minor injuries and nervous shock.

WOOD OFFERS HOME TO ANDOVER POST

Andover, July 19.—Andover Post of the American Legion will take action this week on the offer of William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Company, to give the veterans a lot of land opposite the Memorial Spa and $50,000 towards a building fund on condition that they provide a suitable home for it. The site is located in the newly developed part of Andover known as Shawsheen Village, the home of the mill magnates.

ARLINGTON GIRL BRIDE OF NEW YORK MAN

Miss Helen Mahoney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Mahoney of No. 81 Hamilton street, Arlington, was married to James B. Dolan of New York at the rectory of St. Agnes' Church, Arlington. Rev. Fr. Leonard was celebrant.

Banker Hurt in Maine Crash

Calais, Me., July 19.—E. W. Ward, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia at St. Stephen, N. B., was severely cut about the head in an auto collision on St. Andrews' road, near here. The occupants of the second machine were not injured.

SUNKIST GIRLS HEADLINERS AT KEITH'S

Interpretive Dances Presented in Ziegfeld-Like Setting

The Sunkist Girls, an aggregation of attractive and clever young women, head the bill at Keith's this week. They appear in a Ziegfeld-like setting in a presentation of a series of interpretive dances, pageantry and dance mimicry.

Billed with the headliners are Dell Chain and Don Barclay, who intersperse the dancing numbers with the typically musical comedy variety of foolishness. As laugh producers they are the stars of the program, while the Sunkist girls are Fanchon and Marco, two very clever dancers, formerly stars of the Follies.

Alfred Farrell and Company open the bill by a presentation of artistry in which everything is used but the kitchen sink, a number of fine "paintings" with variously colored cloth.

Dan Stanley and Al Birnes are excellent eccentric dancers. Their "tipsy tumble," in which they endeavor to show how two home brews affect a couple of old-time buck and wing, was especially well done.

A satire on the "eternal triangle" and "Ten Nights in a Barroom" is rehearsed, was a highly amusing sketch. Dorothy Sadlier and William Gaxton and Company rendered valuable assist in that vein, when the women are the "business men" and the men are the "poor deserted husbands."

Other features on the bill are Edwards and Ormsby in instrumental and vocal offerings; Frank Gaby, ventriloquist; Miller and Mack, knockabout comedians, and the movies.

Elevated Field Day

Today serves every evidence of being a gala day at Norumbega Park, as, through the courtesy of the management and General Manager Albertis of the park, they have extended the hospitality of the resort and its attractions to the Boston Elevated Road employees. Manager Dana of the Boston Elevated Railway figures that between 6,000 and 7,000 employes will attend this outing.

Plymouth Excursions

The popular all-day sail out of Boston Harbor is the trip to Plymouth. The steel steamer, South Shore, now leaves Wharf daily and Sunday at 10 a. m., and returns at 5 p. m., arriving at 6 p. m. The trip down is exceedingly interesting, as the boat passes all the forts, islands and lighthouses, and continues beyond the mouth of the harbor. Here one is treated to a view of the historic Plymouth Rock, the Mayflower II, the Pilgrim Monument and Memorial Hall, and the Plymouth Cordage Company's plant. Returning, the boat passes close to Cohasset, Scituate, Minot Light, Hull, Nantasket Beach, Point Allerton, Hingham, Weymouth Fore River, Quincy Point, Squantum, Commercial Point, Dorchester, South Boston and Fort Point Channel. Refreshments are served on board, and dancing is enjoyed on the return trip. Tickets are $1.50 for the round trip, and $1 for the one way trip.

Air Daredevil at Revere

Featured member of John Quigley's Flying Circus, Jerry Hudson, has attracted large audiences and packed grand stands to witness his daring feats in the air during the past week at Revere. He sees him walk on top of a plane, movements being carried down in the swing at no less than ninety miles an hour in order that the railroad may be built. Hudson will provide adequate preservation aid of either straps or ropes although the return trip to the city by continual thrills to the spectators. trails.

Other Theatres

ORPHEUM THEATRE—A delightful programme is being offered the patrons of Loew's Orpheum Theatre the initial half of this week comprising an all-star vaudeville show and the showing of an all-star photoplay and new comedy. Billy Kinkaid, the versatile Scot, won unusual favor in his Highland Laddie characterization; Norton & Wilson afforded much diversion in their singing and dancing and other acts were Carter & Buddy, the versatile colored songster and stepper; Gordon and Delroy, in a lively musical comedy skit and Jess La Tour.

PARK THEATRE—Robertson-Cole has scored another photoplay success in "What's a Wife Worth?" the screen version of the novel by Rex Beach, Christy Cabanne, which opened last night at the Park Theatre. The film, while dealing with a problem in everyday life with which we are familiar, holds the interest of the audience at all times. The story is well told and the picture story answers it in a snappy manner.

JIMMY'S OLD SOUTH AND OLYMPIA—Motion picture fans who admire the virile Canadian characters of the Northwest will be pleased to admire in "A Wise Fool," George MacDonald's picturization of that author's celebrated novel, "The Money Master," which was shown for the first time yesterday at Jimmy's Old South and Olympia Theatres yesterday. The story is a delightful pastoral play, for, who leads a practically all-star cast of screen artists portrays in excellent style the egotistical Jean Jacques Barbille, a French-Canadian philosopher.

GORDON'S STAND—Proving an artistic treat, "The Woman God Changed," a splendid Universal production for Paramount, was shown to a delighted audience at Gordon's Strand Theatre, Upham corner, last night. Packed with thrills from start to finish, the picture gave one no opportunity to sleep at the switch, even had one been so inclined.

MODERN AND BEACON—"Salvage." Pauline Frederick's latest Robertson-Cole starring vehicle, now at the Modern and Beacon Theatres, might aptly be termed an "epic of motherhood," for the greatest of all emotions in its rendered, highest and most lovable moments is the theme of the story.

BOSTON THEATRE—Edith Hallor, in "Just Around the Corner," is the feature at the Boston Theatre this week, being an unusual and pleasing photodrama. Supported by an adequate cast, Miss Hallor's acting is most convincing, whether it be a notable screen drama of the present day

SPECIAL TRAINS AND BOATS FOR BIG PAGEANT

Afternoon Steamers to Sail for Plymouth; Late Rail Service for Return

"How-and when—do we get home from the Pilgrim Tercentenary Pageant?" was answered authoritatively, even to street car service in Boston, in a statement given by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, and the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, both of which are preparing to handle record-breaking crowds to the spectacle, which has its premiere tomorrow night.

Train service to Plymouth will include the present schedule with the addition of such special "sections" as may be warranted by crowds desiring at the last moment to make the trip. A special train will be held at Plymouth for the return trip to Boston, leaving Plymouth at 10.50 p. m., daylight time.

LATE ELEVATED TRAINS.

The Boston Elevated has agreed to hold its last trains in the Cambridge tunnel, making connections at Bunker street, Park street and Harvard square for the special from Plymouth, providing the pageant trails will reach the South Station no later than 12.30 a. m., daylight time.

The Cambridge tunnel train will make connections as follows:

At Summer street—With subway to both directions, northbound for Charlestown and Everett; southbound for Forest Hills.

At Park street—For Commonwealth avenue, Reservoir, via Beacon street, Chestnut Hill, Jamaica Plain, via South Huntington avenue, Tremont street, Egleston square and South Boston.

At Harvard square—For Belmont, North Cambridge, Arlington, Watertown or Waverley.

AFTERNOON BOAT.

The Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company has arranged an afternoon trip in addition to its daily 10 a. m. sailing. On the days of pageant performances the Mary Chilton will leave Rowe's Wharf at 2 p. m., arriving at Plymouth three hours later, in time for dinner.

There is an increased demand for passage to the pageant the Rose Standish, it will also make the trip, going Boston at the same hour. Special steamers will lie over in Plymouth and make the return trip by moonlight at 3:30 a. m. the following morning.

The steamship company will notify the New Haven road of the number of passengers desiring carried down in the afternoon in order that the railroad may provide adequate reservations for the return trip to the city by

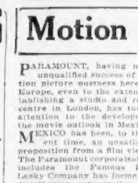
Motion Picture News

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

PARAMOUNT, having made all the unqualified success of the motion picture business here and in Europe, even to the extent of establishing a studio and releasing centre in London, has turned its attention to the development of the movie outlook in Mexico.

MEXICO has been, to the present time, an unsatisfactory proposition from a film viewpoint. The Paramount organization, which includes the Famous Players-Lasky Company has formed a new distributing organization, headed by John Day as president with Miguel Gonzales as secretary and treasurer. They have built a new theatre in Mexico City, and are planning to run a weekly show in the biggest Paramount successes there. Already the theory is practice and the reception accorded the Cecil DeMille feature, "Male and Female," presages unlimited success for the undertaking.

MAE MURRAY RISING STAR



MAE MURRAY

MAE Murray, wife of Arthur Hopkins, one of the most successful theatrical managers, is the latest she expects to venture into the footlights. This is only proof of what Miss Murray has accomplished during the past seven years.

Then Miss Murray, known as the "Shimmy" girl for her impersonation of that artist's creations in the "Follies," was a clever dancer and a typical ingenue. It was for ingenue roles she was chosen almost exclusively in movies a few years later.

Now Hopkins, husband of Hopkins' remarks, and Mr. Hopkins is famous for not making idle remarks, she has reached the stage where she is considered a real actress. Miss Murray has worked day and night for the past few years, and it is said by those at Mr. Hopkins considers that there is a place waiting for her on the stage, it may not be long before we have our first glimpse of the dotted line for a Broadway season.

SEC. K" VACATIONING.

CECIL B. DEMILLE, who recently finished editing and titling his production, "Male and Female," based on the Leonard Merrick novel, "The Actor and the Lady," is cruising with Theodore Kosloff on the coast of Lower California, near the Quadalajara Islands, for swordfish.

They left Kosloff's yacht, the "Sea Hen," named in honor of the famous director

JERSEY SHORE IS SWEPT BY BLAZING OIL

Explosion of Asphalt Plant Still Starts Million Dollar Fire

New York, July 19.—Fire, which swept in flaming billows of oil across New Jersey pasture land and over Staten Island Sound, caused more than $1,000,000 damage and threatened the homes and property of thousands before it was finally under control early today. Starting with the explosion of a still in the Warners-Quinlan asphalt plant at Linden, N. J., the flames, fed by oil from neighboring tanks, spread and raged throughout the night.

Burning oil and asphalt poured into Staten Island Sound in a tidal wave four feet high and swept down upon millions of dollars worth of shipping, piers and plants on the shore line.

Part of the fiery wave broke itself upon Prall's Island, while firemen from a score of towns fought with heroic to dam the flaming tide. Fifty Shipping Board vessels at Arlington were in peril. Navigation for a mile around the danger zone was stopped.

Fire tugs of the Standard Oil Company and the New York Dock Company all waves during the night. Every available man Staten Island's fame-licked shores was called into service.

Scores of persons in the fire-swept area are ill today from the effect of acrid fumes inhaled during the conflagration.

After sweeping across meadowland from the asphalt plant at Linden, the flames destroyed twelve stills in the vicinity and more than a dozen oil tanks. One of the first of the latter exploded early today, shooting pillars of fire hundreds of feet into the air and hurling a great mass of blazing oil into the ocean.

Rushing on upon wind and tide, the burning oil reached a point within fifty feet of Bridge Haven, where it receded. Many inhabitants of the district fled and all others kept an alert night visit.

The $1,000,000 loss includes the destruction of the new Quinlan plant, with thirty-four tanks and 300,000 barrels of crude asphalt and oil. Twenty of the tanks destroyed contained asphalt, which, burning, gave off almost poisonous fumes.

PASTOR SEEKS LIBRARY JOB IN HAVERHILL

Haverhill, July 19.—Rev. Francis A. Holden, pastor of the First Parish Unitarian Church, today formally asked to resign because of alleged unjustice and unfair treatment he asserted that he was open for "a job," and announced his candidacy for the vacancy caused by the death of City Librarian John Moulton. He has filed an application with the board of trustees who will not meet until August 2.

Suppose Japan Did Win, Fighting Us

She WON'T, but Just SUPPOSE. What Would Happen to England

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

Poincare, former President of France, is quoted by Lauzanne, one of the most important French editors, as follows:

Tomorrow, or in the very near future, a thousand questions may arise in the Pacific between the United States and Japan which will be embittered by the hatred of races. How far will England then be drawn by her alliances? No one is in the confidence of fate. We have, therefore, the right and duty to maintain our freedom so that we ourselves may not be carried away later on the tide of adventures.

THAT interests America, and THIS interests ENGLAND. If the United States and Japan are at war, and England should help Japan, one of two things would happen.

The more probable happening would be victory for the United States. It would not be pleasant for England to find the United States conqueror of Japan, with England back of Japan.

Suppose the IMPROBABLE happening, victory over America, with the help of England. What would happen THEN?

Nobody knows better than the English that the immediate result would be the rising of Asiastic peoples against any kind of white interference or control in Asia.

With Japan victor in a world war, JAPAN and not ENGLAND would rule India and the rest of Asia.

The English will not ally themselves with any Asiatic power in a fight against America, or any important white power, for that would mean considerably more harm to England than, for instance, to the United States.

We could stand a reverse if we had to, then collect ourselves and adjust matters satisfactorily.

But if England ONCE lost her hold on her outside possessions, those that are held unwillingly—not, of course, her white colonies like Australia and Canada—would be lost to her forever.

England KNOWS that, for she is managed by statesmen, not by politicians.

Would You Like a Wooden Ship for a Houseboat?

Then Write: "Oh! Mr. Lasker, Please Send Me One"

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

A. D. Lasker, head of the Shipping Board, tells you the country is going to lose $4,000,000,000 on its shipping enterprise. At least he looks the situation in the face and gives you the raw FACTS.

It seems a pity, however, that the fleet of wooden ships which cost $240,000,000 are to be "sold," scrapped or sunk before the first of October.

An ingenious mind like that of Lasker, it is safe to predict, will find some better use for them. If they had them in China, they would anchor them along river banks, providing homes and good fishing for a million people. Why not GIVE them to China if we can't do better?

Or, better, why not give one to any American citizen that will find a place for it on some water front. In Florida, Georgia, Ms se, on the Great Lakes, along the big rivers, the inhabitants would be delighted to have the wooden ships, paying a nominal rental or purchase price.

Sleeping below in bad weather, with big windows instead of portholes on the land side; sleeping on deck under an awning in fine weather, those wooden ships would make excellent homes for Summer, and even for Winter, and they wouldn't be wasted if used for homes by the American people, to whom they BELONG.

Over 150 of these ships are lying in Jamaica Bay. If it is a question of scrapping them, this writer will undertake to find 150 families anxious to have them for homes at "Scrap Prices."

To use them for flying machine targets would be sheer waste. (A floating raft would do as well), the wooden hulls offering no resistance to TNT would be worthless in an experiment.

P. S. TO OUR READERS:

If you would like a big wooden ship for a houseboat, write to A. D. Lasker, the Shipping Board, Washington, D. C. He'll oblige you, if possible.

President Harding, Please Ride Only a Trotter

Trotters Don't Stumble, and You Mustn't Get a Fall

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

President Harding is going to ride horseback, after giving up the exercise for thirty years. It is an excellent idea, due to his family physician, General Sawyer, whose health ideas are eminently sound.

Riding is the best exercise for men past fifty. The horse supplies the heart strain and vitality. The rider gets the benefit.

Those whose ancestors lived perched on a limb, shaken up and down by the wind, are much benefited when their interiors are shaken up and down by a horse.

But President Harding should ride only a big, strong-boned, well-bred American trotting horse.

Not a running thoroughbred, and not an army charger, not some animal selected for its unworthy, unnatural side-wheel gaits, but a regular American trotter, such as Nathan Straus or General Miles, both experts, would know how to select.

The American trotter does not stumble, which is the important thing, especially for a man as heavy and tall as the President.

This writer persuaded the late Joseph Pulitzer to resume horseback riding, which he had neglected since the days he served in the cavalry in the Civil War. He was suspicious at first, as became a careful man, murmuring, "Brisbane, Brisbane, you are in league with my heirs to have me killed," but he started on a big trotter, named "Injour," never rode anything but trotters, never had a fall, or a stumble.

He was nearly sixty and almost blind at the time, but he rode regularly, taking American trotters to Europe with him.

The people couldn't afford to have anything happen to President Harding just now, hence this advice.

U. S. Could Easily Afford to Pay Soldiers' Bonus

Make Debtor Nations Settle and Private Railroad Managers Either Manage the Roads or Give Them Up.

Mr. Charles O. Power, to whose efforts our disabled soldiers owe a great deal, apparently in a fit of indignation left the following note on our desk concerning the soldiers' bonus:

Cannot afford to pay a bonus! Why, there could be no better national investment—no better assurance of business stability—no better guarantee of industrial peace and progress than the conviction among 4,500,000 of our young men who entered our military service and their 20,000,000 relatives that the country had been grateful and had appreciated their sacrifices.

It is difficult without feeling indignant to think of this great, prosperous country, the creditor nation of the whole world, pleading poverty as an excuse for not paying the proposed bonus, which is less than that paid to the soldiers of the very countries that owe us thousands of millions of dollars.

France paid her discharged soldiers $233.58 as a bonus.

England paid from $141 to privates to $7,290 to officers.

Italy paid from $64 to $850.

Australia paid from $98 to $751.

Canada paid from $600 to $4,758.

The United States gave our officers and private a $60 tip!

We are the only nation among our late associates which has not finally adjusted our obligations to our soldiers.

We have given and propose to give to the railroads as a reward for their inefficient and corrupt private management a total of nearly four thousand million dollars, which would be a thousand dollars to every soldier who entered the service.

We have not collected the $500,000,000 of annual interest owed to us by the European countries which have done so much more for their soldiers than we.

We paid, after the war closed, some three thousand millions to war contractors whose business had been injured by the sudden closing of the war. We heard no cry from the gentlemen opposing this bonus that we were "commercialising patriotism" when we paid three thousand million dollars to these contractors, who upon every ground of principle were entitled to no different consideration for their losses than our soldiers.

We have no doubt that President Harding finds himself sorely perplexed by the demands upon the revenue of the country, but we feel that if his advisors and assistants had the will they would find the way to do justice to the soldiers and yet not bankrupt the richest country in the world. But we cannot pay the military expenses of the imperialistic countries of Europe by permitting them to default their interest on their debts to us, and we cannot pay the debts of the railroads caused by bad and corrupt management, and do other things that we ought not to do and at the same time pay our soldiers.

We could reduce our civil service list and make our debtors pay their debts, and tell our private managers of the railroads either to manage the roads or give them up. These things we can do, and then we should probably not find it so difficult for this great, hulking nation to perform a simple, obvious act of justice.

Widening of Boston Streets

New Buildings Going Up Should Not Crowd the Thoroughfares

We are informed that the owners of a building in the congested part of Washington street wish to make a present to the city of three-quarters of their interest in that part of their property which borders on the sidewalk, in order that the street at that point may be widened. This means a widening of Washington street at this place for a distance of 120 odd feet.

The people who have controlled the policies of the city of Boston in years past have not had the vision or the courage to adopt a complete program for the widening of our twisted, narrow, little streets, although every one of them must know that in the course of a very few years the value of people's time lost by the slowness of their progress along these congested streets, and the loss in their nervous reserve, which is caused by the necessity of manoeuvring in these crowds, is far, far more than the cost of a complete program of street widening. We do not in this calculation of loss on account of our wretchedly overcrowded sidewalks and streets, include the loss of natural acquisition from outsiders on account of their dislike of our mean little streets.

In the meantime, old buildings are coming down, and in lieu of a complete program, we could see that new buildings on the sites of old buildings should not crowd the streets, and we could accept such offers as we have mentioned above.

The Equitable Sales Tax

In considering the merits of the sales tax bear ever in mind that all taxes on articles of consumption are paid in the end by the consumer.

Congress, which seldom discusses problems of taxation in a way to inspire respect among those who have studied the subject, is shy of the sales tax as a substitute for the excess profits tax because they say it will take the burden of taxation from the rich and place it on the poor.

No statement could be more false.

The excess profits tax, when it is not evaded, as it usually is, is promptly shifted. The people who ought to pay it seldom do. As a rule the government loses the money altogether. When it gets the excess profits, or a part of them, it is not the profiteers that suffer.

A tax upon consumption is not the best of all possible taxes. But it is the most available one at present. And if it shall take the form of 1 per cent. tax on every sale it will come nearer to equitable taxation than any method now under discussion.

Women Smoking Cars

The Canadian Pacific Railroad announces its intention to set apart a place on its trains in which women may smoke.

The reason given for this extraordinary change is that there should be equality between the sexes in the matter of privileges. It is impossible to deny the soundness of the reason. We cannot take the sweet without the bitter, the rose without the thorn.

But those who have daughters growing up and who contemplate the significance of this kind of equality will bless their heavenly stars that prohibition has come and reverentially appreciate that it came none too soon.

MILLIONS of the poor, deluded followers of this false leadership have already gone beyond the brink into the abyss. Other millions are on the march to bankruptcy. Will the coming disarmament conference call a halt?

Results to Date of Prohibition

"What Has Prohibition Actually Accomplished to Date?" asked William Randolph Hearst editorially in the Boston American of July 2. One hundred dollars will be paid for the best answer of not more than 150 words.

Burden on Taxation

Editor Boston American:

Replying to your interrogation, "What Has Prohibition Accomplished to Date?" I submit the following:

Stopped an enormous import duty of many millions of dollars.

Stopped an internal revenue of many millions more.

Caused expenditure of many millions to patrol the border enforcing same.

Increased the burden of taxation in the raising of those several millions.

Allowed the big fellow to have his spirits, the little fellow none.

Driven people to drinking extracts of all kinds, even to home-brewing and distillations.

Caused more deaths directly, domestic troubles, insanity and suicides.

Curtailed an extensive industry employing labor and material.

Caused the greater part of the labor unrest.

Robbed mankind of a pleasure enjoyed by some abused by others since the days of Noah.

Ruined the staple business of Eastern New England, the fishing industry.

Encouraged smuggling.

Be It Ever So Humble

By DR. CHARLES FLEISCHER

ONE of the sweetest and commonest traits in our human nature—one which we share with most of animate nature—is the desire for nesting and for home-building.

Be it ever so humble, there is no place like home! Whatever little or much you may do towards building a home is the expression of your creative instinct.

Pride and joy in your home is your equivalent of God's satisfaction with His creative work, when He saw that it was good.

Alive and Growing

Father and mother, of course, are the chief creators of the home. But the children and all the other members of the household are also potential fellows of the benevolent conspiracy of home-builders.

Because its components are alive and growing, a home is always in process of becoming. It is never finished. Be that same token, it can always be bettered or worsened.

The democratic home is different from any that ever has been, because all of its members count.

In the ancient and traditional home the husband and father was master supreme, the sons ranged next in importance, but mother and daughters were ancillary and incidental.

The democratic home is made up of mutually respecting equals. Its slogan is the typical slogan of democracy; each for all and all for each!

The democratic home is the spiritual triumph of mutuality. Therein, ideally, each gives according to capacity, and to each is given according to need.

Every home is—or should be—an experiment in communism. Here "mine" and "thine," materially measured, should be reduced to a vanishing minimum; and OURS, spiritually estimated, shoul be exalted to a shining maximum.

The home is the first social unit, even as the individual is the ultimate human unit.

The democratic home is still the breeding place of all our tenderest feelings. But also it is the friendly developer of individuality and of all the grace and strength of personality.

To have a part in the building of such a serviceable social institution, a really heavenly haven, is a rare privilege, fortunately as common as it is rare.

Gift of Good Cheer

Bring to it continuously the gift of your good cheer, the blessing of your happy song, the benediction of your smile. Let your home radiate warmth and welcome, not only to all visitants, but to its members as perpetual dividends of their common wealth.

Weigh your words and measure even your thoughts, as that your intangible contribution to the atmosphere of your home may come in terms of beauty, love and joy.

Your house is your castle, your kingdom. Create there your foretaste of heaven—in every finest sense, Home, Sweet Home!

LOOK BEHIND THE CLOUDS

When you are prone to look on life as a drab and dreary existence, get into your thought channels the pictures you can recall of happy events in your past life.

Think of the things which have given you the greatest pleasure and see if you do not feel happier and more pleased with life.

Until you get control of your mind and are able to shut out the unpleasant things, you may have many gray days.

When the future looks full of gloom you do your work in a half-hearted manner and you are in no condition to change the dark spots of your life.

But when you can shut out, at will, all thought of disappointment and foreboding and put in its place happy anticipation, you have an incentive to make you work to some good purpose, and get more out of living.

There is a whole lot of good a whole lot of happiness, but it is to each one for him or herself to find the golden horizon beyond the bank of clouds.

Get your share of sunshine by radiating a happy thought and it will return twofold.
